To the Assembly of the State of New York:

The committee on privileges and elections having (in the case of the petition of Fordham Morris for the seat, as member of Assembly for the First Assembly district of the county of Westchester, held by Ambrose H. Purdy) on the 8th day of February, 1878, made a full return and report, detailing the conclusions from the evidence and proofs submitted to them, when the case was rested by the contestant; and having submitted to this House the resolution to which such conclusion inevitably led; and this House having partly considered such report, Mr. Herring, counsel for Mr. Fordham Morris, appeared and requested that the case of Fordham Morris, contestant for the seat as member of Assembly for the First district of Westchester county, now held by Ambrose H. Purdy, be recommitted to the committee on privileges and elections, for the purpose of further taking of testimony therein.

Whereupon a resolution, in the words following, was adopted:

Resolved, That the matter of the claim of Fordham Morris to the seat of Abrose H. Purdy as member of Assembly for the First Assembly district of Westchester county be, and the same is hereby recommitted to the committee on privileges and election, with instructions to take proof as to all the matters alleged in the answer of the sitting member to the petitioner's specifications.

Under the instructions thus given, your committee have proceeded, taking a large amount of proofs, and evidence which was presented on the part of both parties to the contest, raising questions of fact not before your committee when they first reported, all of which evidence and proofs are herewith reported for the further and full information of the House.

Your committee would further report that following the rule laid down by an accredited authority on the law and practice of legislative assemblies, that a committee has no power except what is specially delegated or conferred upon it by the House, and should in all cases, where not otherwise directed, report the special matter to the House to be by them considered and determined upon; and finding that no opinion is called for, implied or authorized, by the resolution upon which these subsequent proceedings have been taken, and the evidence and proofs now returned presenting questions of fact, eminently the fit subject of examination and conclusion of each member of this House, your committee, therefore, respectfully submit such evidence and proofs, with the following resolution:

Mr. Speaker presented a communication from the corporation counsel of the city of New York, in the words following :

OFFICE OF THE COUNSEL TO THE CORPORATION, }
NEW YORK, April 10, 1878. }

HON. JAMES W. HUSTED, Speaker of the Assembly :

Sir—I have the honor to transmit schedules, partially complying with the resolution passed by the Assembly on the 28th of March, requesting information from this department. To complete the material asked for will require further time, as the matter is voluminous. The schedule of judgments begins October 1, 1876, instead of January, 1877, because the courts open October 1, making the court year properly begin on that date. I will furnish hereafter the statements of judgments assented to. It will require time, as the method or system adopted has been, never to assent to the entry of a judgment without addressing to the finance department a communication, giving the grounds for believing that the city could not successfully defend against the action, and allowing a sufficient time thereafter to elapse to enable any mistakes to be corrected by the finance department, if anything had been overlooked by us. In this way it comes about that judgments entered by consent have been the subject of correspondence in all cases, and the reasons are matter of public record. The amount of profitless litigation thus wiped out has been large; and I shall require twenty days' further time to go over the records, in order to make up a full statement of the ones assented to by the city. The other data requested I will also forward.

Yours very respectfully,

W. C. WHITNEY.

Mr. Daly moved that the extension of time asked for be granted.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Daly moved that the report from the corporation counsel, as furnished to this House, be laid upon the table and printed.

The Private Secretary of the Governor appeared before the bar of the House, and presented a message in the words following:

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 12, 1878. }

To the Assembly :

I return without approval Assembly bill No. 147, entitled "An act in relation to the keeping open of certain public offices in the county of Westchester."

The Revised Statutes prescribe the days and hours on which the offices of clerks and registers in all the counties of the State shall be kept open. They expressly except all days which were then declared to be holidays, and all which should thereafter be so declared. This bill is based upon the assumption that very many of the days now observed as public holidays have not been declared such by law for any other purpose than for the presenting and protesting commercial paper. I do not think that the statutes upon this subject will bear any such construction. If they will, the proper remedy is to pass a general act which will be applicable to all the clerks' offices in the State. These offices are established, not for the benefit and convenience of the men who hold them, but for the use and convenience of all people who have business to transact with them. The rule in regard to them should be the same in all the counties of the State. If it is not so now, a general act should be passed making it so. The impropriety of making a special and separate law for each county is manifest. A few counties have already obtained such laws. If the practice be not arrested, the mischief will continue until each county in the State shall have a rule of its own, differing, probably, from that of every other county.

The Private Secretary of the Governor appeared before the bar of the House, and presented a communication from His Excellency the Governor, in the words following :

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 15, 1878.

To the Assembly :

I return, without approval, Assembly bill No. 153, entitled "An act to amend section 21, article 3, title 3, chapter 6, part 1 of the Revised Statutes."

This bill seeks to amend the present statute regulating the appointment of inspectors of election by adding a provision that the minority inspector shall be selected from the two persons in such election district having the highest number of votes for the office "belonging to the political party opposed on national and state political issues to the political party to which one or both of the two persons so elected belong." It further provides that in each town one of the poll-clerks shall be selected from the political party to which the two inspectors who shall be elected shall belong, and the other poll-clerk shall be selected from the political party from which the inspector who shall be appointed as aforesaid shall belong.

This act seems to me far less likely to secure an impartial conducting of our elections than the present statute. The provisions of the Revised Statutes upon this subject have continued in force without amendment for very many years. It is contrary to the spirit of our general law to take account in the statutes of political situations which are subject to continual change, and are not capable of any designation sufficiently stable for statutory recognition. Frequently, within the period that the present law has been in force, there have been three, and even four, well-defined political parties differing upon national and state politics. The theory of the existing statute is that, in every locality, the responsible minority shall be represented upon the board of election inspectors. In one section of the State this minority may belong to one political faith, elsewhere to any one of the other three. The present act, however, contains an arbitrary mandate compelling the selection of inspectors from two political parties only, thus casting upon the inspectors elected the burden of deciding which is the political party opposed to them.

Again, it is conceded that the most efficient and desirable inspectors of election are those whose partisan predilections are not sufficient to ally them strongly to any political organization. Their official action is apt to be more strictly impartial than that of those who are zealous partisans. Yet the present act debars this entire class from acting as inspectors of election, and requires that all inspectors shall be partisans.

Of the provision in the bill regulating the appointment of poll-clerks, it may be said that while it is open to the same objections above stated, it is out of place in that the title of the Revised Statutes amended by this bill is not the one regulating the appointment of poll-clerks, and the effect of the bill is to interject into one title of the Revised Statutes a provision which belongs to another. Moreover, the appointment of clerks is so entirely matter for the consideration of the board of inspectors, that if it be desirable that one clerk be conceded to the minority, the method of his appointment should be left to the minority inspector.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Fish moved that said message, with the accompanying bill, be laid upon the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Sheldon again resumed the chair, and reported in favor of the passage of the bill entitled "An act in relation to the canals," with amendments, which report was agreed to, and the same ordered engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Hepburn moved to discharge the committee of the whole from the further consideration of Assembly bill entitled "An act to confirm and protect the incorporation of the village of Hermon," and that said bill be ordered to a third reading.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members present voting in favor thereof.

Mr. Terry, from the committee on privileges and elections, presented the following report :

To the Assembly :

The committee on privileges and elections beg leave respectfully to report that they have held sessions both in this city and in New York, and that they have examined numerous witnesses, including Augustin Snow, the Senate reporter of the New York Times, whom, it appears from the evidence, was the writer of the dispatch under investigation ; and, from the testimony of the several witnesses, it cannot be doubted that most of the statement, in spirit and meaning, so far as it impugned Mr. Fish's official action, was untrue in fact. Mr. Fish's course was in no way influenced by the Smyth trial, or bargain, or agreement, or understanding as to how any one should or would vote on that trial, or by a desire to influence any one as to his vote on that trial. He merely performed his duty as chairman in reporting the elective comptroller's bill, having been directed so to do by a vote of the committee. The meeting at which this was ordered was not specially called, but was a meeting adjourned according to the regular practice of the committee on cities. The bill was brought up at that meeting by Mr. Daly, known as an opponent of Tammany, and its favorable report was ordered by the unanimous vote of all the members of the committee present. As Messrs. Brooks and Holahan were not present at the meeting of the committee, before reporting it, Mr. Fish sent the clerk of the committee to inform them of the action taken. They at once applied to Mr. Skinner, a member of the committee on cities, to join with them in requesting a recommittal of the bill, which was consented to by Mr. Fish on condition that the bill should retain its place on general orders. The bill was subsequently again reported by Mr. Fish, and was not delayed a moment by the action taken in recommitting it.

It was admitted by Mr. Snow's counsel that the statement that information of the action in reporting the bill was given to the Tammany Senators, and that they thereupon agreed to change their intended course, was incorrect. The Senators whose action is impugned voluntarily appeared before the committee and under oath denied that their action was influenced by any bargain, or that they at any time wavered as to the course they intended to pursue, or that they had any knowledge of the report of the elective comptroller's bill, or that their action was in any way influenced by that bill, its report or recommittal. There is no pretense that Mr. Fish in any way attempted personally to influence them.

As to other Senators, the only evidence offered of alleged attempts to influence them was confined to conversations with two of them by persons other than Mr. Fish, and both of these Senators voted against Mr. Smyth.

The sole statements of the letter which are sustained by any evidence, apart from the report and committal of the comptroller's bill as already stated, are that there were rumors of a bargain ; that two of the so-called Tammany Senators stated to a New York Assemblyman, Mr. Baker, the night before the vote was taken, that they intended to vote against Smyth, and that they afterward voted for him. The further fact that Mr. Fish congratulated Senator Pomeroy on his speech is not denied.

Mr. Snow, while substantially admitting that such was, in the evidence, the real state of the facts, reiterated his belief in the existence of a bargain, though not that Mr. Fish was a party to or acquainted with it. He also expressed the opinion that no Tammany Senator could, if influenced by the evidence alone, have voted to acquit Mr. Smyth. He claimed, and his defense rested principally upon this ground, that he acted in good faith in making the statements he did. It is difficult for us to perceive how this is possible. He asserted in his letter as facts various things of which he admits that there is not only no evidence, but of which he says there was not even a rumor. Such are his statements—that information of the report of the elective comptroller's bill was given to the Tammany Senators, and that they at once gave assurances that they would vote as desired in the Smyth trial, and that in consequence thereof the comptroller's bill was recommitted. Moreover, the slightest inquiries as to the facts attending the report and the recommitment would have shown him that these statements could not be correct. The utmost that any one could be justified in stating was, that the occurrences unexplained left room for suspicion. It surely did not justify the grave charge deliberately made, not only against Mr. Fish, but against members of a co-ordinate branch of the Legislature. In saying this we do not overlook the practice, more or less necessary on the part of legislative correspondents, of incorporating in their letters rumors, the foundation of which they have not carefully examined; nor the other practical characteristic of many besides writers of the press, of assuming that public men who differ from them are influenced by improper motives. But this characteristic of our time does not justify the practice.

Mr. Mills, the reporter of the New York Daily Times in the Assembly, is in no way connected with the matter.

The resolution under which we act substantially prescribes the course we should take if we arrive at the conclusion upon the facts which we have reached. If Mr. Snow had frankly acknowledged his error we might have ventured to request a modification in this respect. As it is, we advise the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the evidence taken before this committee, together with this report, be transmitted to the Senate for such action as they may deem proper.

Mr. Terry called from the table the report of the committee on privileges and elections on the contested seat of Ambrose H. Purdy, claimed by Fordham Morris, in the words following :

To the Honorable the Assembly :

Your committee on privileges and elections, to which was referred the petition of Fordham Morris, claiming the seat in the Assembly now held and occupied by Ambrose H. Purdy as member of Assembly for the first Assembly district of the county of Westchester, respectfully report :

That the parties and their counsel have appeared before the committee and have all been heard ; that upon the investigations before your committee it was first discovered that the return from the first election district of the city and town of Yonkers, as originally returned by the inspectors of election of that district to the county canvassers, showed that the whole number of votes cast in that election district for member of Assembly was five hundred and six, which were stated in said return as follows :

Ambrose H. Purdy received three hundred and eight.....	308
Fordham Morris received one hundred and eight	198

That said return had no ballots attached to it as required by statute ; that the board of county canvassers of Westchester county, after effecting their organization, caused this return to be taken back to the inspectors of election of that district, as provided by statute, for correction ; that thereupon the inspectors attached to a sheet of paper the specimen ballots so required by statute, and wrote and made return, partly upon said ballots and partly upon said paper, with reference to member of Assembly ; that Ambrose H. Purdy received three hundred and eight votes, like the one so attached, and that Fordham Morris received one hundred and ninety-eight votes, like the one attached, which paper they certified by their signatures as inspectors, and attached to the original return as a part of the same, which original return was then returned to the board of county canvassers, and the vote of that election district was canvassed by them, by giving Mr. Purdy three hundred and eight votes, and Mr. Morris one hundred and ninety-eight.

Your committee, Mr. Piper only dissenting, are of the opinion that the return from the first election district of the city and town of Yonkers was properly canvassed by the county canvassers, by counting three hundred and eight votes for Mr. Purdy and one hundred and ninety-eight votes for Mr. Morris.

Your committee required to be produced before them the original returns of the inspectors of election from each of the election districts in the first Assembly district of the county of Westchester. It was conceded by both parties that the board of county canvassers correctly canvassed and estimated the vote as to member of Assembly in each election district, except the sixth and eighth districts in the Twenty-third ward of the city of New York, and the first district of the city and town of Yonkers.

It appears from the evidence before your committee, that the whole number of votes cast for member of Assembly in this Assembly district was seven thousand two hundred and twenty-two ; that the board of county canvassers, in the canvass of said vote, gave to Ambrose H. Purdy thirty-six hundred votes, and to Fordham Morris thirty-five hundred and eighty-eight votes, leaving thirty-four votes which were counted for neither in the final canvass, but which appeared by the returns to have been returned to the county canvassers as follows:

In the sixth election district of the Twenty-third ward:

Fordham H. Morris	1
Fordham Morris, irregular	19

In the eighth election district of the Twenty-third ward:

Fordham Morris	13
Ambrose H. Purdy	1

Total	34

That the nineteen votes returned from the sixth election district "irregular," and not counted for Fordham Morris, were, as appears, returned and not counted for Mr. Morris by the county canvassers, for the reason that the words "of the county of Westchester" were not at the head of the ballot, the same being upon all the other ballots in that election district; that the thirteen votes returned from the eighth election district of the Twenty-third ward, and not counted for Mr. Morris, were rejected for the same reason; and it also appears that in this district one vote was not counted for Ambrose H. Purdy for the same reason.

Your committee are unanimously of the opinion that the words "of the county of Westchester" so omitted from the head of the said ballots were not required as a portion thereof by any law of this State, and that the ballots were complete without them, and that it was the duty of the inspectors of election of the said sixth and eighth districts to have counted and returned the said nineteen and thirteen ballots for Fordham Morris and the said one ballot for Ambrose H. Purdy, and that it was the duty of the board of county canvassers of Westchester county to have counted and estimated the said ballots for Mr. Morris and Mr. Purdy respectively.

If a correct canvass of the whole vote had thus been made, it would have resulted as follows:

Fordham Morris	3,620
Ambrose H. Purdy	3,601
Fordham H. Morris	1
Total	7,222

And that, therefore, the certificate of election should have been awarded by the board of county canvassers to Fordham Morris.

On the part of Mr. Purdy it is insisted, that there were frauds and irregularities in the election in different districts, which he claims he can prove, and by which he asserts he can establish that he was in fact elected.

It is entirely just and proper that Mr. Purdy should be allowed to present any testimony he may have bearing upon the question of his election, and that he should be awarded the seat if he shall be able to prove that he is entitled to it. But it appears to your committee equally just and clear, upon the plainest principles of justice and equity, that Mr. Morris should be awarded his seat at this time, of which he is deprived by a palpable violation of law and duty; and that Mr. Purdy should be placed in the same position that he would have been in had the county canvassers observed the law and performed their duty.

Your committee therefore report and recommend the adoption of the following resolution :

Resolved, That Fordham Morris is entitled to and is hereby awarded the seat in the Assembly now held and occupied by Ambrose H. Purdy as member of Assembly from the first Assembly district of the county of Westchester, and that the said Ambrose H. Purdy be at liberty to contest such seat if he shall desire to do so.

STATE OF NEW YORK — CANAL DEPARTMENT, }
ALBANY, March 28, 1878. }

HON. JAMES W. HUSTED, Speaker of the Assembly :

SIR — On the twenty-second instant, the House adopted the following, namely :

“Resolved, That the Auditor of the Canal Department be requested to inform this House the amount of money paid from the State treasury, and the parties to whom paid, during the last ten years, for any patents or other experiments for steam towage on the canals.”

In reply to the foregoing resolution, the Auditor presents the following report :

The Legislature, by act chapter 868, Laws of 1871, created a commission to practically test and examine inventions, or any and all devices which might be submitted to them for that purpose during the years 1871 and 1872, by which steam, caloric, electricity, or any other motor than animal power might be practically and profitably used and applied in the propulsion of boats upon the canals.

The first report of the commission appointed under said act was made to the Legislature February 15, 1872. (Assembly Document No. 61.) The second report was made to the Legislature February 25, 1873. (Senate Document No. 71.) In their second report the commissioners, after giving their reasons for not making any award under the act recommended that the reward offered by chapter 868, Laws of 1871, be continued, and the Legislature, by act chapter 480, Laws of 1873, did continue the powers of the commissioners one year beyond the time limited in the original act, but made no other amendment of its provisions.

The third and final report of the commission was made to the Legislature February 20, 1874. (Assembly Document, No. 65.) The commission made no awards under the act, but recommended the Legislature to enact a law “that shall do justice to those competitors who have so nearly met the requirements of the law of 1871,” and submitted the draft of a law that “will be just and equitable to certain competitors therein named.” * * *

The Legislature, in response to such recommendation, enacted a law, chapter 618, Laws of 1874, for the relief of William Baxter, David P. Dobbins, and Theodore Davis; and in accordance therewith the Comptroller paid to William Baxter thirty-five thousand dollars; to David P. Dobbins fifteen thousand dollars, and to Theodore T. Davis five thousand dollars, making a sum total of fifty-five thousand dollars. The sums paid to the aforesaid parties include all the money paid from the State treasury during the last ten years, or during any time previous to that period, for any patents or experiments for steam towage or steam propulsion on the canals, excepting the amount paid for the expenses of the commission created under the act of 1871.

Respectfully submitted.

GEORGE W. SCHUYLER, Auditor.

Whereas, A progeny of idiots have been born, and are being born in some of our poor-houses ; be it therefore Resolved (if the Senate concur), First, That the receiving of parents and children in the same poor-houses, and children in any poor-house, is a prolific source of evil, and one which ought to be removed by the authorities in every town in the State.

SURROGATE'S OFFICE, NEW YORK, April 22, 1878.

To the Hon. JAS. W. HUSTED, Speaker of the Assembly :

HONORABLE AND DEAR SIR—I am in receipt of a copy of a resolution of your honorable Assembly, calling for certain information respecting the administration of the surrogate's office of New York, over which I have the honor to preside :

I shall most cheerfully give the information asked, at the earliest practicable moment, and am making such progress as my available clerical force will permit, consistent with the urgent demands of daily business. Yet it is my duty to say, that it could not be furnished within the time fixed by the resolution if all of my clerical force were put upon it, thus suspending all the current business of the office, to the incalculable loss of the public. But which you can approximate when you reflect that this office does more than one-fourth of all the surrogates' business of the State of New York, and has, within the last two years, dealt with pecuniary interests amounting to at least three times that of all the other surrogates of the State.

The information sought will require the examination of all the orders and decrees made and entered in this office during the last two years, amounting to about ten thousand ; and it is proper that I should say, for the information of the Assembly, that I have no power to increase my clerical force or the expenses of the office.

I therefore respectfully request that the time to make my report be enlarged. A moment's reflection will convince the members of your honorable body, that the information asked by the resolution will afford no means of judging whether the allowances of fees and costs to auditors, attorneys, etc., were or were not reasonable, for the obvious reason, that you will not be in possession of any facts respecting the services rendered, the character of the estate, the proceedings taken, or the amounts or questions involved.

As your resolution does not call for this information, and it is necessary in order that the inquiry may serve some beneficial purpose, I venture respectfully to suggest that the resolution be so enlarged as to embrace the whole subject, and thus enable me to give it by your authority.

Will you be pleased to submit this matter to your House, for such action as it may seem to deserve?

I am, most respectfully and faithfully,
 DELANO C. CALVIN, Surrogate.

The Private Secretary of His Excellency the Governor appeared before the bar of the House and presented a message in words following :

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 23, 1878. }

To the Assembly :

I return without approval Assembly bill No. 178, entitled "An act in regard to the Union Free School District No. 1, in the village of Fort Edward, and to authorize the board of education thereof to contract with the Fort Edward collegiate institute for the use of certain rooms in said institute for school purposes and for the instruction of pupils therein."

The bill provides that the board of education of Union Free School District No. 1, of the village of Fort Edward, may contract with the Fort Edward collegiate institute (a private corporation) for the use by the free school of rooms to be provided in a building to be erected by the institute ; the contract to be on such terms and for such a period of years as may be agreed upon by the owners of the private academy and the public school authorities. The contract is to be submitted to the inhabitants of the district entitled to vote at school meetings. If approved by them, the annual rent agreed to be paid is to be a charge upon the district, and the board of education is authorized to levy taxes for the amount, without further submission to the tax-payers, every year that the contract may run. No limit is imposed by the bill on the length of time for which the contract may be made.

The building belonging to the institute has been destroyed by fire and it is about to erect a new one. In this it is proposed to set apart rooms for the use of the public school, notwithstanding that the latter has a building of its own. My objections are these :

First. The general school law (section 19 of chapter 567 of the Laws of 1875) provides a sufficient remedy for cases of school houses becoming overcrowded. The trustees are empowered to hire rooms temporarily. There is no necessity for giving to this one district the special power to make a permanent lease, as proposed by the bill. And it is obvious that the providing of rooms, in a building yet to be erected, will not relieve any existing need of the district. If there be no such existing and instant need, then a contract for the use of rooms for many years to come, at a permanent cost to the tax-payers, is without excuse.

Second. The Fort Edward collegiate institute is a private academy, taking pupils for pay. There are obvious objections to the mingling of the pupils of our free schools with those of private schools under one roof. The two systems have antagonistic features and both will work better apart.

Third. The bill is in violation of the spirit of the Constitution, which forbids the use of public moneys, obtained by taxing the people, in aid of a private undertaking. It seems plain to me that the object of the bill is to secure to the collegiate institute a fixed income for a long period of years out of the taxes of the district.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Terry moved that said bill, with message, be laid upon the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

A communication was received and read, from the Governor, in the words following :

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 23, 1878. }

To the Assembly :

(See Doc No. 124.)

Mr. Terry called from the table the report of the committee on privileges and elections, relative to the investigation of the New York Times reporters.

To the Assembly :

The committee on privileges and elections beg leave respectfully to report that they have held sessions both in this city and in New York, and that they have examined numerous witnesses, including Augustin Snow, the Senate reporter of the New York Times, whom, it appears from the evidence, was the writer of the dispatch under investigation; and, from the testimony of the several witnesses, it cannot be doubted that most of the statement, in spirit and meaning, so far as it impugned Mr. Fish's official action, was untrue in fact. Mr. Fish's course was in no way influenced by the Smyth trial, or bargain, or agreement, or understanding as to how any one should or would vote on that trial, or by a desire to influence any one as to his vote on that trial. He merely performed his duty as chairman in reporting the elective comptroller's bill, having been directed so to do by a vote of the committee. The meeting at which this was ordered was not specially called, but was a meeting adjourned according to the regular practice of the committee on cities. The bill was brought up at that meeting by Mr. Daly, known as an opponent of Tammany, and its favorable report was ordered by the unanimous vote of all the members of the committee present. As Messrs. Brooks and Holahan were not present at the meeting of the committee, before reporting it, Mr. Fish sent the clerk of the committee to inform them of the action taken. They at once applied to Mr.

Skinner, a member of the committee on cities, to join with them in requesting a recommitment of the bill, which was consented to by Mr. Fish, on condition that the bill should retain its place on general orders. The bill was subsequently again reported by Mr. Fish, and was not delayed a moment by the action taken in recommitting it.

It was admitted by Mr. Snow's counsel that the statement that information of the action in reporting the bill was given to the Tammany Senators, and that they thereupon agreed to change their intended course, was incorrect. The Senators whose action is impugned voluntarily appeared before the committee, and under oath denied that their action was influenced by any bargain, or that they at any time wavered as to the course they intended to pursue, or that they had any knowledge of the report of the elective comptroller's bill, or that their action was in any way influenced by that bill, its report or recommitment. There is no pretense that Mr. Fish in any way attempted personally to influence them.

As to other Senators, the only evidence offered of alleged attempts to influence them was confined to conversations with two of them by persons other than Mr. Fish, and both of these Senators voted against Mr. Smyth.

The sole statements of the letter which are sustained by any evidence, apart from the report and commitment of the comptroller's bill as already stated, are that there were rumors of a bargain; that two of the so-called Tammany Senators stated to a New York Assemblyman, Mr. Baker, the night before the vote was taken, that they intended to vote against Smyth, and that they afterward voted for him. The further fact that Mr. Fish congratulated Senator Pomeroy on his speech is not denied.

Mr. Snow, while substantially admitting that such was in the evidence the real state of the facts, reiterated his belief in the existence of a bargain, though not that Mr. Fish was a party to or acquainted with it. He also expressed the opinion that no Tammany Senator could, if influenced by the evidence alone, have voted to acquit Mr. Smyth. He claimed, and his defense rested principally upon this ground, that he acted in good faith in making the statements he did. It is difficult for us to perceive how this is possible. He asserted in his letter as facts various things, of which he admits that there is not only no evidence, but of which he says there was not even a rumor. Such are his statements — that information of the report of the elective comptroller's bill was given to the Tammany Senators, and that they at once gave assurances that they would vote as desired in the Smyth trial, and that in consequence thereof the Comptroller's bill was recommitted. Moreover, the slightest inquiries as to the facts attending the report and the recommitment would have shown him that these statements could not be correct. The utmost that any one could be justified in stating was, that the occurrences unexplained left room for suspicion. It surely did not justify the grave charge deliberately made, not only against Mr. Fish, but against members of a co-ordinate branch of the Legislature. In saying this we do not overlook the practice, more or less necessary on the part of legislative correspondents, of incorporating in their letters rumors, the foundation of which they have not carefully examined; nor the other practical characteristic of many besides writers of the press, of assuming that public men who differ from them are influenced by improper motives. But this characteristic of our time does not justify the practice.

Mr. Mills, the reporter of the New York Daily Times in the Assembly, is in no way connected with the matter.

The resolution under which we act substantially prescribes the course we should take if we arrive at the conclusion upon the facts which we have reached. If Mr. Snow had frankly acknowledged his error we might have ventured to request a modification in this respect. As it is, we advise the adoption of the following resolution :

Resolved, That the evidence taken before this committee, together with this report, be transmitted to the Senate for such action as they may deem proper.

Debate arising thereon,

Mr. Alvord raised the point of order relative to the language used by Mr. Gilbert, and called for the stenographer's notes in the words following:

MR. GILBERT—He says nobody from Onondaga dares vote so and so. He virtually says to the other two members from Onondaga: I challenge you to vote for this measure. No matter how well you may be convinced that the great need of the public is for a revision, no matter how well you may be satisfied of the stupendous folly of stopping where we are, or going back where we begun—no matter, you dare not do it. I wonder if the gentleman from Onondaga has been managing the affairs of this House so long as to suppose that he can crack the whip around members from Onondaga or anywhere else, and tell them what they dare or dare not do?

Mr. Gilbert raised the point of order, that said language was used by Mr. Alvord, and called for the stenographer's notes in reference thereto in the words following:

"I venture to say that no man from my county can be here a member of the Legislature next year who will dare—and I speak it understandingly—who will dare to vote in favor of taking the people's money to continue this miserable attempt at improving the practice of the State at the expense of the great mass of the people."

Mr. Speaker decided the point of order raised by Mr. Alvord as well taken, and that said debate should proceed in order.

The hour of two o'clock having arrived, the House took a recess until half-past four P. M.

HALF-PAST FOUR O'CLOCK, P. M.

The House again met.

Mr. Speaker stated that the pending question, at the hour of taking a recess, was upon the concurrent resolutions relative to the appointment of a special committee to revise the Code.

Debate arising thereon,

Mr. Speaker put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Pending the call of the roll, Mr. Gilbert moved a call of the House.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the negative.

Strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"§ 2. The term of office of the present commissioner of jurors in said city shall cease and terminate twenty days after the passage of this act, and on that date his salary shall cease and terminate. The mayor, within five days after the passage of this act, shall nominate to the board of aldermen a suitable person as commissioner of jurors. If such nomination is rejected, he shall continue to nominate a suitable person until the said board confirms the person so nominated. On the confirmation by the board of aldermen, the mayor shall issue to the person so confirmed a certificate of his appointment as commissioner of jurors, which certificate shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the city and county of New York.

"§ 3. The term of office of the commissioner of jurors hereafter appointed shall be three years, and the annual salary of said commissioner shall be five thousand dollars.

"§ 4. The commissioner of jurors may appoint such clerks and subordinates as he may require to aid him in the discharge of his official duties, and shall fix the salaries of such clerks and subordinates, who shall hold office for the full term for which the commissioner is appointed, except that they may be removed for cause after being afforded an opportunity to be heard. The aggregate expenses incurred by him for such purposes, including the salary of the commissioner, shall not in any one year exceed the sum of twelve thousand dollars. All salaries shall be paid monthly, in the same manner as other salaries of city or county officials are paid. The appropriation for the year eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, to provide for the salary of the commissioner of jurors, is hereby appropriated to pay the salaries and expenses by this section authorized for the year eighteen hundred and seventy-eight.

"§ 5. All fees, fines and penalties collected by said commissioner of jurors, shall be paid over by him, under oath, at the end of each and every month to the chamberlain of the city of New York for account of the commissioners of the sinking fund of said city. Said commissioner shall, at the time of making such monthly payment, furnish to the comptroller of the city and county of New York a sworn return, in writing, setting forth at what date and from whom each fine, fee or penalty was received; and such monthly returns shall be printed in full in the city record, within ten days after the filing thereof, respectively.

Harris, Loomis, and Jacobs.

Mr. Kern offered, for the consideration of the House, resolutions in the words following :

Whereas, A great sorrow has cast its shadow over the household of our colleague, Hon. W. A. Crandall, of Madison, in the death of his only son last week, and in the death of his much-esteemed wife, who departed this life in Cazenovia this morning ;

Resolved, That the House express its sincere regret at the great loss which our colleague has suffered, and extends to him its sincere sympathy in his sudden bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to our colleague.

Resolved, That this House do now adjourn.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said resolutions, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon, at 1 o'clock and 10 minutes, the House adjourned.

MONDAY, APRIL 29, 1878.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

Prayer by Rev. Samuel E. Smith.

The journal of Friday, April 26, was read and approved.

The Private Secretary of His Excellency the Governor appeared before the bar of the House, and presented five several messages in the words following :

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 29, 1878. . }

To the Assembly :

I return without my approval Assembly bill, not printed, entitled "An act providing for the appointment of an additional number of commissioners of deeds in the city of New York." There are already two thousand seven hundred and ten notaries public in the city of New York. Besides this there are three hundred commissioners of deeds, making a total of over three thousand officials in the city who are authorized to exercise the powers of the proposed new officials. I cannot see any good reason for adding to this already excessive number two hundred and fifty new and needless officers. If any change is desirable in such matters, it is in the direction of lessening the number of public officers, rather than increasing it. L. ROBINSON.

On motion of Mr. Grady, said bill, with message, was laid upon the table.

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 29, 1878. . }

To the Assembly :

I return without approval Assembly bill No. 271, entitled "An act authorizing the Courts of Oyer and Terminer and the Courts of Sessions of the county of Saratoga to direct payment of clerk hire in certain cases."

This act seeks to authorize the Courts of Oyer and Terminer and the Courts of Sessions of the county of Saratoga to allow compensation to the person employed by and acting as clerk of the district attorney of that county for services rendered as such clerk at said court, not exceeding the sum of ten dollars a day, and for a period not exceeding six days at any one term of said court. It may perhaps be doubted whether the intent of this bill is to limit the compensation or gratuity mentioned to the person now acting as clerk to the district attorney, or whether it comprehends any person who may be employed in that capacity. But in either event, the enactment seems to be singularly unwise. It is no part of the province of either of the courts mentioned to remunerate the clerk of the district attorney. He is not a public officer known to the law. He is not subject to the supervision of the courts, and they have no knowledge as to the value of his services. If any such expenditure is proper, it is the duty of the board of supervisors to consider and allow it. They have abundant power, and there is no reason why, in a single county of the State, it should be taken away from them and vested in certain courts. The precedent would be pernicious, and might open the door to much mischievous legislation.

On motion of Mr. Neilson, said bill, with message, was laid upon the table.

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 29, 1878. }

To the Assembly:

I return without approval Assembly bill No. 169, entitled "An act requiring the highway tax of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company through the town of Mentz to be applied to the repairs of certain highways and bridges in said town."

The first section of this bill provides that one-half of the highway tax of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, in the town of Mentz, Cayuga county, shall be paid annually by the commissioners of highways of said town of Mentz, to Porter P. Wethy, Hiram Burhans and the agent of said railroad company at Port Byron, and shall be expended by said Wethy and Burhans and said agent in work and repairs on the several roads and highways leading from the passenger and freight depot at Port Byron station to the village of Port Byron, and the work and repairs on certain other roads and highways named.

There are two fatal objections to this bill. The first is that it is simply an appointment by the Legislature of overseers of highways in the town of Mentz, and next, that it is a plain violation of the eighteenth section of the third article of the Constitution, in that it is a local bill providing for the working of roads and bridges. Either fault is sufficient to justify its veto, and the two render it both unconstitutional and improper.

On motion of Mr. Converse, said message, with bill, was laid upon the table.

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 29, 1878. }

To the Assembly:

I return, without approval, Assembly bill No. 140, entitled "An act to amend chapter 104 of the Laws of 1877, entitled 'An act to authorize the treasurer of Monroe county to sell property for unpaid taxes.'

In the sales of lands for taxes by the State, the law requires a publication once in each week for twelve weeks. The act authorizing the county of Monroe to make sale of its own lands reduced the time from twelve weeks to six weeks. This bill proposes to further reduce it from six weeks to two weeks. This is plainly too short a time, and may cause very great injustice and wrong to the owners of real estate advertised to be sold. It is only one-third of the time required for publication of notice of sales under all judgments of the courts, and cannot be regarded as a full and fair notice to parties interested.

On motion of Mr. Skinner, said message, with bill, was laid on the table.

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, April 27, 1878.

To the Assembly :

I return, without approval, Assembly bill No. 166, entitled "An act relating to certain indebtedness of the city of New York, and to provide for the payment and cancellation of the same."

I have given to this bill careful study, coming to its examination with a strong prejudice in its favor. It is commended by the Mayor and Comptroller of the city of New York as a measure that will "simplify the financial affairs of the city, prevent the future augmentation of its debt, and provide for the payment of its outstanding stocks and bonds at maturity." My own examination of it has led me to fear that if enacted it will accomplish nothing toward these purposes beyond what will be attained if the financial affairs of the city are left to be regulated by the existing ordinances and laws.

A general objection to the whole bill is that its language is so obscure and involved that its construction will be difficult and uncertain. Trusts so enormous as those affected by this bill ought not to be subject to statutes wanting in precision.

The financial condition of the city is this, as stated in the memorial of its authorities recommending this bill. Its funded debt is $121,440,133.15. Its temporary debt payable from special assessments is $21,329,500. The revenue bonds which are issued every year in anticipation of the taxes for the year are omitted from this statement. For the payment of the assessment bonds, the moneys collected and to be collected from assessments now form a special and appropriate fund. The bill proposes that these temporary assessment bonds shall be mixed up with the funded debt and that the existing sinking fund provided for the redemption of the funded debt shall be made liable for these temporary bonds. It provides, it is true, that the moneys now in the treasury of the city, collected on account of assessments for local improvement, and all moneys that shall be collected hereafter on account of assessments for local improvements now begun, shall be paid into the sinking fund, so that only the deficiency in the collections for these assessments will in fact be paid out of the sinking fund. This provision is not in the direction of simplicity, nor is it consistent with good faith. The sinking fund was established for and is pledged to the protection of certain long bonds. It is obvious that if these assessment bonds are made a charge upon the sinking fund, they having a shorter time to run will be paid earlier and have a preference over the bonds to which the sinking fund belongs and is pledged. Another class of bonds amounting to one million of dollars is to receive a like unfair preference, to wit, certain bonds of the towns annexed to the city from Westchester county. These, by section 4, are to be called in, redeemed and cancelled out of a sinking fund not originally pledged to them. These Westchester bonds have already been assumed by the city. There is no reason why they should not be left to get the benefit of the sinking fund in common with the rest of the funded debt in their proper turn. Moreover, while the bill professes to pay into the sinking fund the whole sum to be collected from assessments, it provides that all the assessments due from the city itself on its real estate shall be cancelled of record, thus increasing the burden unjustly imposed on the sinking fund for this class of bonds. With regard to the assessment bonds, the simple and honest course is to apply to their payment all the moneys properly pertaining to them that can be collected. When a deficiency in such collection is ascertained such deficiency of course must be assumed by the city, and will then become part of the funded debt and receive in common with other indebtedness the benefits of the sinking fund. There is not the slightest need of now mixing the accounts of the assessments with those of the funded debt, or with those of the sinking fund. It would be a breach of the city's plighted faith to do so. Any change in this respect, which is not necessary, is likely to be of injury. It will serve to conceal from public observation the deficiency likely to result in assessment collections.

Section six of the bill provides that whenever in any year the commissioners of the sinking fund, shall certify that the accumulations in the sinking fund are not sufficient to pay the stocks and bonds becoming due in the next calendar year, the city shall levy a tax towards the payment of such bonds or stocks provided that such tax shall not exceed in any one year $1,000,000. This section so far from providing for the payment and cancellation of the city debt, which the title of the bill proclaims as its object, in fact restrains the city from paying its debt as it comes due however willing it may be to do so. The reason assigned for this restriction is that it will be too burdensome on the tax payers to exact from them each year the whole of the principal that falls due in the year. The amount of principal that falls due in the ten years including the period from 1878 to 1887, makes an average of $2,835,000 for each year. This is the average amount of principal to be paid beyond that which the sinking fund has provided for; that is to say, it is the amount of the principal debt which must be paid by taxation, or by an issue of new bonds. The difference between the share of the state tax paid by the city in 1873, and the share paid by it in the present year is almost double the average sum which the city would be obliged to raise annually if for the above period of ten years it met all the maturing principal of its debt by taxation. The debt of the city must be paid by taxation sooner or later, and the provision in this section would have been wiser if instead of restraining the city from taxing itself beyond a million in any year, it had required a tax to be levied every year of at least a million for the payment of the principal of the debt whether the sinking fund was equal to the demand for the year or not.

The sinking fund for the redemption of the city debt was established many years ago by ordinance of the common council. It is dangerous for the Legislature to meddle in any degree with its original pledges.

It was established to provide for the payment of certain bonds of the city which amount in all to $21,510,043.47, not payable, some of them, until 1917. The securities in the sinking fund amount now to $31,080,007.54, that is to say, there is a nominal excess of $9,500,000, and with this excess the bill proposes to deal. Until the stocks in behalf of which the fund was created are fully paid, there is no excess, there is no sum which the common council or the Legislature can properly divert or pledge to other purposes. Until then, the accumulations must, as a matter of good faith, go on as prescribed by the original terms of the ordinance. Nor is there any necessity for now disposing of the excess which will be found in the fund, if all goes well, when its original purposes shall have been accomplished. By the ordinances of the common council the commissioners of the sinking fund are obliged to make all their investments in city stocks, so that when the sinking fund has accomplished its original purpose, whatever excess or surplus there may then be will be found invested in the various outstanding stocks of the city, a ready-made sinking fund for those stocks. By letting things alone, by leaving the sinking fund to operate under the original ordinance, the city keeps faith with the creditors to whom the fund was first pledged, and yet is constantly doing the very best thing to protect its other creditors, to wit, buying its own debts.

The most accurate calculations I have been able to make show that in 1888 the sinking fund, if let alone, will have an accumulation of over $50,000,000, after having paid $12,500,000 of principal of debt coming due in the mean time.

Again the bill authorizes the issue of new bonds to run from twenty to fifty years in exchange for all bearing interest at more than five per cent that are now a charge upon the city. It does not limit this issue to the necessities of the city arising from time to time from insufficiency of the moneys provided jointly by the sinking fund and by taxation. The probable effect of this section would be to place the greater part of the debt beyond the reach of the commissioners of the sinking fund.

Despite the fact that the bill provides for the exchange of city securities to an enormous amount it contains no provision for publicly advertising their sale or exchange or for securing competitive bids. The entire matter is left to private negotiation and the city might fail to realize any fair premiums whatever upon its new issues. Transactions of so large amount in valuable securities ought to be made on public notice and in such way as to secure for the city the most profitable disposition of its bonds.

The bill, as I have said, is obscure and ambiguous in its language. Financial statutes ought, above all other laws, to be clear and precise, leaving no room for misconstruction.

I would promptly give my assent to any bill which would secure with certainty a simpler and better condition of the city finances and provide for the extinguishment of its debt as rapidly as is consistent with the ability of the tax-payers. An act clothed in very few words and containing a few simple provisions would suffice to these ends, and would accomplish, with certainty, all the beneficial results which are claimed to be the purposes of this bill without encountering the objections which many of its provisions suggest.

The act should provide:

1. That the city shall levy every year at least one million of dollars towards payment of the principal of its debt.

2. That whenever in any year the amount of principal which falls due is greater than the sum provided by the sinking fund and by taxation, the residue may be met by a new issue of bonds under proper restrictions.

3. That whenever the commissioners of the sinking fund hold or shall purchase any of the bonds or stocks for securing the payment of which the sinking fund was created, such bonds or stocks shall be cancelled and the interest on them shall cease.

4. That whenever bonds for new purposes shall be issued annual taxes shall thereafter be levied sufficient to pay the interest and to meet the principal within twenty years.

Mr. Brooks moved that said order of business be laid upon the table, for the purpose of taking up the special order of the day, being the "Memorial and concurrent resolution from the mayor, comptroller, and chairman of the finance committee of the city of New York, and a petition from the Chamber of Commerce, the Importers' and Grocers' Board of Trade, and the Board of Trade and Transportation," in the words following :

To the Honorable the Legislature of the State of New York, in Senate and Assembly convened :

May it please your honorable bodies : Your memorialists respectfully represent to your honorable bodies that the producing and commercial interests of the State, and particularly those of the city of New York, have suffered greatly, and are still suffering, by reason of the unjust discriminations and other defects existing in the management of the railroads chartered by the State of New York ; that said railroads are in the habit of carrying freight for the citizens of other States, and also for citizens of foreign countries at lower rates than for citizens of the State of New York ; and, also, that individual citizens of this State are given special privileges and rates, and rates out of all proportion to those charged the public in general.

Details of these abuses are set forth in the appendix to a report of a committee of the Chamber of Commerce, copy of which is herewith submitted, and your memorialists earnestly request that a special committee representing both Houses of the Legislature may be appointed with all necessary powers, whose duty it shall be to investigate these alleged abuses ; to inquire into and report concerning the powers, contracts and obligations of the railroads chartered by this State, and what, if any, legislation is necessary to protect and extend the commerce of our State ; and that said committee be instructed to take testimony in the city of New York, and report by bill or otherwise, during the present or the next session of the Legislature.

Your memorialists would call attention to the fact that the revenues collected by the railroads of this State exceed by more than ten fold the entire revenues of the State derived from taxation, and notwithstanding the overshadowing importance to the public of honest and equitable management of our railroads, and notwithstanding all the changed conditions of the age in which we live, most of them consequent upon the enormous development of this interest, there has been no supervision or regulation of said interest, and but little legislation except that sought by the railroads themselves since these modern highways were in their infancy.

Your memorialists, therefore, pray that a thorough investigation into their management may be at once instituted.

And your memorialists will ever pray.

SAM. D. BABCOCK,

President Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

GEO. W. LANE,

President Importers' and Grocers' Board of Trade.

AMBROSE SNOW,

President Board of Trade and Transportation.

NEW YORK, March 5, 1878.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a special committee of five persons be appointed by the presiding officer of the Senate and Assembly, two by the Senate and three by the Assembly, with power to send for persons and papers, whose duty it shall be to investigate the abuses alleged to exist in the management of the railroads and transportation lines chartered by this State, and to inquire into and report concerning their powers, contracts and obligations; said committee to take testimony in the city of New York and such other places as they may deem necessary, and report to the Legislature, either at the present or the next session, by bill or otherwise, what, if any, legislation is necessary to protect and extend the commerce of the State.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence therein.

Mr. Speaker in the chair.

The Private Secretary of the Governor appeared before the bar of the House, and presented three several messages in the following words :

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 1, 1878.

To the Assembly :

I return, without approval, Assembly bill No. 326, entitled "An act to amend chapter 291 of the Laws of 1870, entitled 'An act for the incorporation of villages,' so far as the same relates to the village of Northville, in the county of Fulton."

The chief objection to this bill is, that it is an attempt to evade the operation of the general law by an amendment, the effect of which is limited to a single village. It is a simple evasion of the general statute and the constitutional policy of the State, and is fairly equivalent to a violation of both. Several bills, exactly similar, were passed and vetoed at the last session of the Legislature. Since the adoption of the constitutional amendments forbidding special charters to villages, a number of such bills have been introduced in the Legislature, but have uniformly been defeated in the Legislature, or vetoed by the executive.

Besides this general objection, the matters sought to be regulated by the amendment are within the power of the board of supervisors of the county of Fulton. I know of no reason why, in the case of this single village, they should be taken from the supervisors and made the subject of a special legislative authority in the trustees.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Griggs moved that said message, with bill, be laid upon the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 1, 1878.

To the Assembly :

I return without approval Assembly bill No. 266, entitled "An act to amend chapter 118 of the Laws of 1873, entitled 'An act to provide for the construction and improvement of the road from Piseco Lake to Clafin's tannery, in the county of Hamilton.'"

The act sought to be amended by the present bill was passed on the 22d of March, 1873, and provided that it should remain in force for five years. It therefore expired on the 22d of March last. The present bill revives it and declares that it shall remain in force for ten years. The simple effect is to re-enact the law for five years to come. Since the bill was passed, the Constitution has been amended by adding the provisions of the eighteenth section of the third article, one of which is, that the Legislature shall not pass a private or local bill laying out, opening, altering, working or discontinuing roads, highways or alleys. The present bill is clearly in conflict with this provision of the Constitution, and would be a nullity if it were approved. As to its constitutionality, it differs in no respect from an original act providing for the construction of the road in question.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Griggs moved that said bill and message be laid upon the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 1, 1878. }

To the Assembly:

I return without approval Assembly bill No. 171, entitled "An act to create a board of alms, and to secure the better application of funds to relieve the poor in the town of German Flats, in the county of Herkimer."

This bill seeks to create a board of three persons, consisting of the supervisor of the town of German Flats and the presidents of two villages in that town, to oversee the administration of the poor laws in that town. It provides for the appointment of an overseer of the poor by the board of alms created by it, and abolishes the statutory office of overseer in that town, in effect substituting the newly created overseer for the office now provided for by the general poor law. It commits the relief of the poor to officers chosen for other purposes by part of the inhabitants of the town only. It provides that they may audit and allow their own claims for services. It authorizes them to provide labor for all persons who apply for relief, and to pay for such labor.

The first fault of the bill is, that it appoints a board of town auditors in plain violation of the Constitution. Besides this defect, I cannot see any reason for the enactment of a local and special law making this one town an exception to the entire State in the system of public relief to the poor, while the most superficial reading will suggest very grave evils which are likely to result from it. It is a most evil example of special legislation. If the Legislature deem it wise to alter the provision in regard to the care of our poor, it should be done by general laws, and after the most careful study. The method proposed for this town is, so far as I can recollect, without precedent.

L. ROBINSON.

Mr. Sheard moved that said bill, with message, be laid upon the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Worth offered, for the consideration of the House, a preamble and resolution in the words following:

Whereas, The interests of the people of this State are deeply involved in whatever concerns the internal commerce of the country, and facilitates rapid and cheap transportation therein; and

Whereas, The National Congress, in obedience to a popular demand, enacted a law in the year 1862, authorizing the formation of a corporation styled the Union Pacific Railroad Company, which, with its auxiliary and associate companies, should construct a railway from the Missouri river to the Pacific; and in aid of such construction agreed to grant immense tracts of public lands, and advance bonds of the Government, amounting to many millions of dollars, to such companies; the general features of which act may be summarized as follows:

The provisions of the act were made applicable, primarily, to the said Union Pacific Railroad Company, and, secondarily, to the auxiliary companies, upon their acceptance of its terms:

The capital stock was fixed at one hundred millions of dollars, and to prevent its absorption by few persons, so as to become a powerful monopoly, the amount of the stock which might be held by one party was limited to two hundred thousand dollars. All usual and necessary corporate powers were granted, prudential restrictions imposed, and amendatory powers reserved; a donation of public lands, unexampled in extent, was made, and an issue of the thirty year bonds of the Government, bearing six per cent currency interest, was authorized, at the rate of sixteen thousand dollars per mile from the several eastern termini to the base of the Rocky mountains, of forty-eight thousand dollars per mile over the Rocky and Sierra Nevada mountains, to the extent of one hundred and fifty miles in each case; of thirty-two thousand dollars per mile over the intermediate country between said ranges of mountains, and of sixteen thousand dollars per mile from the base of the Sierra Nevada mountains to the Pacific ocean:

The corporation was to be established and invested with the benefits of the act, when two millions of the capital stock should be subscribed, and ten per cent ($200,000) thereof paid to the treasurer of the commissioners named in the act to manage the incipient proceedings; and

Whereas, Pursuant to published notice of said commissioners, aided by pressing appeals to public patriotism, the required subscriptions were made, the ten per cent. paid in, and the organization perfected in October, 1863, under auspices of financial promise never excelled, its shares having been subscribed for by one hundred and twenty five of the most sagacious and responsible business men of the country, and its treasury supplied with two hundred and seventeen thousand seven hundred dollars in money, and entitled to call in one million nine hundred and fifty-nine thousand three hundred dollars more, being the unpaid balance of stock subscribed for; and

Whereas, Circumstances occurred simultaneously with the organization, which interfered with these fair prospects, and caused a disaffection which eventually culminated in a withdrawal of nearly all of the original shareholders from continued participation in the enterprise, and devolved upon the management the necessity of an appeal to Congress for further legislation, the more prominent features of which, as proposed or adopted, may be stated as follows:

In February, 1864, Hon. John Sherman, at the request, and in behalf of the companies, as stated by him, presented to the Senate of the United States a bill embodying the provisions and measures which the several interested companies desired as amendatory of the act of 1862. This bill, exhibiting unmistakably their intention in respect to the repayment of moneys which should be paid by the government in their behalf, with interest thereon, substituted for the loan of government bonds provided for in the act of 1862, an issue by the companies of their own first mortgage bonds for amounts double or nearly double the amounts of government bonds to be issued, and provided for the guarantee by the government of the interest thereon for twenty years, at the rate of six per centum in gold, with specific provision that for all interest which the government should be required to pay under such guarantee (except a gratuity of one year's interest), the government should be subrogated to the rights of the holders of the bonds to collect from the companies the amounts paid, with interest thereon also, at six per cent.

This bill, amended, passed the Senate, but was disagreed to by the House, and in lieu thereof amendments to the act of 1862 by clauses or sections were passed, and became law July 2, 1864.

By these amendments, the right of the people to participate in the capital stock was amplified by the requirement that the books for subscription to the capital stock should be kept open in the principal cities of the country, and at other places, until the entire capital of one hundred millions of dollars should be subscribed, the only condition to valid subscription being the payment, "at the time of subscription, of an amount per share, equal to the amount per share previously paid by the then existing shareholders;" and the intention of Congress to prevent monopoly (expressed in the original act by the limitation of the amount of capital stock, which might be held by one party, to two hundred thousand dollars), was made more certain and effective by the requirement that the company should make assessments upon its stockholders of not less than ten dollars per share per annum, until the par value ($100) of all shares subscribed should be fully paid; and to further ensure and protect each of these purposes, and prevent evasion thereof, it was provided that "money only shall be receivable for any such assessments, or as equivalents for any portion of the capital stock."

The lien of the government by a first mortgage, created by the act of 1862, for its subsidies of bonds, as stated, was waived in favor of, and was subordinated to a first mortgage, authorized to be made by the companies for an amount equal to such subsidies, or issue of government bonds, and priority of payment was accorded to the holders of said mortgage bonds of the companies.

The right to reduce the rates of fare, and establish the same by law, when the net income should exceed ten per cent upon its cost, also the right to alter amend or repeal this act, were expressly reserved and declared.

The issue of government bonds was prohibited, unless a statement, verified on oath by the president of the company, should show that the sections of road, in relation to which they were to be issued, had been constructed as specified in the act, and unless a certificate to similar effect should have been made by the government commissioners appointed therefor; and annual statements were required to be made by the company, and verified on oath, in like manner, setting forth the names of the stockholders, directors and officers of the company, the amount received from passengers and freight, the expense of said road and fixtures, and the amount of the various kinds of indebtedness; and

Whereas, The alleged cost of the several roads which have been constructed, in pursuance of said acts, whether ascertained from such verified statements, or shown by the various classes of indebtedness for which the companies are liable, increased by the amounts declared to have been paid for capital stock—by law required to be in money only—contrasted with the well known cash cost of other roads constructed over similar descriptions of country, forces the conclusion that the realized means and resources of the companies have either been wantonly and culpably wasted, or have been diverted from their legitimate uses, whereby the proclaimed right of the public to become shareholders on equal terms has become vitiated, the security of the government and other creditors impaired, and the public welfare, in the future use of the roads, made forever tributary to the production of revenue on fictitious capital; and,

Whereas, The several companies, in disregard of the declaration of their bill of 1864, as above recited, have successfully denied their obligation to refund to the government the semi-annual payments for interest on its thirty years' bonds issued in their behalf, until the maturity of the bonds, or to pay any interest upon such semi-annual payments at any time, and are now actively resisting legislation by Congress for the creation of a sinking fund intended to ensure the ultimate payment of said bonds and interest; and it is evident that without such sinking fund, and by a reliance upon the future value of the roads alone, it will most certainly occur that the government, in addition to the immense loss of intermediate interest now unavoidable, will be subjected to a loss of the greater portion of its claim for interest—being many millions more than the principal—as the discharge of principal and interest, and of the first mortgage bonds then falling due, will require millions of money in excess either of the value or cost of the roads; and,

Whereas, One of the said companies has already been made insolvent by the squandering of its resources upon a "construction company," and a disregard of the provisions of said acts, and its first mortgage is now being foreclosed, to the imminent peril of six millions of dollars and interest thereon advanced by the government, and others of said companies already depleted by "Credit Mobilier" and similar agencies, when compelled to provide for the sinking fund, may be forced into a similar condition unless effective measures are taken to compel a restitution of all moneys, means or resources unlawfully used, and to enforce the payment in money of the par value of all stock which has not already been so paid for agreeably to law; and to restore to the public the right to subscribe and pay for in money further shares to the extent and upon the terms prescribed in the act of 1864, which right has been practically terminated by a clause in an act, passed March 3, 1873, apparently designed, as is its effect, to confer upon the holders of existing stock, whether genuine or fictitious, the enjoyment of all the net revenues of companies exempt from the payment of interest upon the loans from the government until their maturity, in case that even then the payment of either principal or interest shall be deemed expedient. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the credit of the government, the public welfare and the interests of all tax-payers equally demand:

That the provisions of the act of 1864, in relation to the payment of all the stock of said companies to the par value thereof in money shall be enforced.

That all payments heretofore made in derogation, evasion or disregard of such provisions shall be declared void, and all stock on which payments shall have been so made, wholly or in part, shall become forfeited and null unless the holders thereof shall pay in money all unpaid balances not so paid in money on their respective shares within sixty days from the time when such unpaid balances shall be ascertained and announced by proper public notice.

That all moneys, means or resources which at any time may have belonged to any of said companies, or to which they may have been entitled, and which may have been abstracted or diverted unlawfully, shall be recovered or lawfully accounted for for the benefit of said companies.

That the public shall be restored to their right to participate in the stock of said companies, according to the provisions of said act of 1864; and the amount per share to be paid when subscribing, viz: the amount paid in money by existing share holders, shall be established and declared by law. That the cost of said roads and appurtenances upon which the tariff of rates is by law provided to be regulated, shall be justly determined by judicial proceedings or otherwise; and

That a sinking fund shall be created from the annual net revenues of each said company, sufficient to provide for the certain payment when due, of their respective obligations to the government: And be it further

Resolved, That the foregoing preamble and resolutions be printed, and copies thereof transmitted to each of the Senators and Representatives in Congress for this State, with a request that they give the subject their immediate consideration, for the purpose of securing such action as may be suggested by their sense of duty to their constituents, and the urgency and importance of the case.

Said resolution being concurrent,

Ordered, That the same be laid upon the table.

On motion of Mr. Alvord, and at 1 o'clock and 55 minutes, the House took a recess until half-past four, P. M.

Mr. Brooks rose to a question of privilege, and spoke as follows :

"Mr. Speaker, I find myself charged, in the New York World of this day, with being a public criminal in the United States Court. Now, sir, I have been connected with journalism for a great many years ; forty-one years with one journal in the city of New York, from the year 1836 to 1877, and I suppose, Mr. Speaker, I have received my full share of the blows which journalists in the discharge of their duties feel called upon from time to time to inflict upon members of the same profession. In public life, I do not think I have ever before asked the attention of a body of which I was a member, to anything which has been said of me by any of my associates connected with journalism, or otherwise. I know from long experience the power of the press, and the influence of the press, of editors and reporters, and the dramatist never said a truer thing than when he remarked that it were better to have a bad epitaph when dead, than their ill report while living. Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, in view of what has been said of me, and the public record that I am a criminal in the United States Court, I have, since I have taken my seat here this afternoon, and without any desire to interrupt the third reading of bills, which are matters of public import and of much more importance than any of my private griefs, put on paper my reply to these charges of the World, and I will read them. They are brief :

"I am charged by the New York World of to-day, in a continuation of repeated calumnies during the present session of the Legislature, with being guilty of 'one of the basest imaginable offenses,' viz., of making, in or through the New York Evening Express, on the sixth of March last, when I was in my place in the House, 'a vulgar and brutal attack on the personal character of the reputed chief proprietor of the New York Times,' and upon Louis J. Jennings, formerly of the New York Times, and now the reputed editor of the London Week.

"It is proper for me to say, as a member of this House, and it is due to my constituency in the county of Richmond to say, that the charge is false in part and false in whole. My editorial relations with the New York Express notoriously ceased on the 1st of June, 1877, since when I have been in no way responsible for what has appeared in its columns, nor the owner of any large share of its stock. My personal and business relations with the editor of the New York Times have for very many years been of the most friendly character, nor have I, as a journalist or otherwise, at any time made any attack upon Mr. Jennings or his family, as stated in the New York World.

"My answer to this charge shall be in the World's own language, as printed this day: 'The public servant being in charge of a public trust (and I regard the editor of a newspaper as in charge of a public trust), who prints lies and libels about other people, * * * may have penitentiary reasons for seeking to protect himself and his official conduct against the daylight.'

"My connection with a public journal in the city of New York extended from 1836 to 1877, during all of which time my relations with my associates of all parties engaged in journalism were alike friendly and respectful, and this is in part my reason for this protest against the unprovoked and wanton attack made upon me in the columns of the New York World."

Mr. Nelson moved that the protest of Hon. Erastus Brooks, in reply to the assault made upon him in the columns of the New York World, be entered upon the journal of this House.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. S. V. R. Miller offered, for the consideration of the House, a resolution in the words following:

Resolved, That Assembly bill (not printed), G. O. 670, entitled "An act in relation to the publication of the Session Laws in Rensselaer county," be ordered to a third reading.

Pomeroy, Goebel, and Ecclesine a committee of conference thereon on the part of the Senate, and request a like committee on the part of the Assembly.

Mr. Fish moved that a like committee be appointed on the part of the House.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

The Senate returned the bill entitled "An act relating to certain of the public burdens of the various cities of the State," with a message that they had concurred in the passage of the same, with the following amendments :

Strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert the following :

"SECTION 1. For the purposes of this act, the local authority in each of the cities of the State shall be the common council thereof, except in those cities where a board of estimate and apportionment exists, pursuant to law ; and in such cities the local authority shall be such board of estimate and apportionment.

"§ 2. The local authority in each city is hereby authorized and required to fix, determine and regulate, specifically or in gross, as hereinafter provided, in each year, including the year 1878, the fees, percentages, allowances and salaries provided for, in whole or in part, by tax, or from the proceeds of the obligations of the city, of all public officers, employes and others which are or may be payable directly or indirectly out of the treasury or the money of said city, and in regulating such fees, percentages, allowances and salaries, the local authority is authorized, in its discretion, to reduce the number of such officers, employes and others, except judges and justices, and except as herein otherwise provided. They shall provide that the duties of attendants upon the courts, civil and criminal, shall be performed so far as competent persons therefor can be found by retired or pensioned policemen, and by those who from age or from physical causes are incapacitated from ordinary patrol duties, allowing a reasonable compensation for their services to such persons who shall be assigned to such duty by the board of police and shall, when so assigned, receive only such compensation, and shall, while so assigned, be subject to the judge or justice presiding in the court. Whenever, in any city, the board of education, or any other separate department or branch of the city government, has, by existing law, the exclusive right to estimate and appropriate moneys for schools and educational purposes, such right shall not be affected by any thing in this act contained ; but where such estimates and appropriations are under the control or revision of the common council or of a board of estimate and apportionment, then and in that case all appropriations for schools and educational purposes shall be made in gross to the board of education or other department or branch of the city government having charge of the schools and educational interests of the city, as now required by law, and it shall be the duty of such board of education or other department to so distribute all appropriations as that no liability shall be incurred in excess of the same ; and all reductions in the number of employes of a board or department of education, and of the compensation thereof, shall be under the exclusive direction and control thereof ; and appropriations for salaries shall be made in gross to each department of a city government, and it shall be the duty of the board or head of any department, to which such or any other appropriation may be made, to so apply such appropriation as that no liability shall be incurred in excess of the same, and any violation of such duty by any board or head of department shall be ground of removal of such officer or board. And whenever such appropriation for salaries shall be made in gross to any department, all reductions in the number of employes and in the compensation thereof shall be under the exclusive direction and control of the board or head of such department. All unnecessary offices and employments shall be abolished by each local authority, board of education, and department of a city government, to the extent of their respective jurisdiction over the same, as in this act provided ; and the duties now performed by the incumbents thereof assigned to the incumbent or incumbents of some other officer or employment.

“ § 3. Any judicial or other officer whose salary is, by the Constitution, prohibited from being diminished during his term of office, shall continue to receive and be paid the salary to which he is now entitled ; but his successor shall not receive or be paid from the treasury of such city any sum which would increase his salary as such officer, to a sum in excess of ten thousand dollars per annum.

“ § 4. It shall be the duty of such local authority, where the same is a board of estimate and apportionment, to regulate, fix and determine the sums to be applied and paid during any one year for any purpose, which is or is to become a charge against or a burden upon said city, whether the same is fixed by special law or otherwise, except the proportion of the State tax to be paid by said city and the amount required to be provided by law to pay or to be applied on account of any bonds or stocks of said city, payable from taxation, not otherwise provided for, and the interest on the bonded debt of the city. But nothing herein contained shall be construed as conferring any power to withhold moneys from charitable or other institutions or societies authorized by any existing law, or which may be hereafter specially authorized by law, to receive the same ; nor to reduce the amount authorized by any such law, unless such reductions are made in equal ratios or proportions as to all such institutions and societies.

“ § 5. In every city where the local authority is a board of estimate and apportionment, the powers conferred upon such board shall be exercised and applied so that the aggregate amount raised by tax in such city for the fiscal year next following the time when this act shall take effect, and each subsequent year, for purposes other than the payment of the proportion of the State tax to be paid by said city, and the amount required to be provided by law to pay or to be applied on account of any bonds or stocks of said city, and the interest on the bonded debt of the city, shall be at least two millions of dollars less than the aggregate amount required to be raised by tax in said city for the year eighteen hundred and seventy-eight for said other purposes. After the provisional estimate provided by law to be made each year has been returned by the board of aldermen to the board of estimate and apportionment, and before the final estimate is made as now required by law, the said last mentioned board shall fix such sufficient time or times as may be necessary to allow the tax-payers of said city to be heard in regard thereto, and the said board shall attend at the time or times so appointed for such hearing; and the said board of estimate and apportionment shall fix in the final estimate the salaries and compensation of all persons paid out of the city treasury, other than for payment of day laborers, not in any department nor under the board of education, so that the aggregate of all the salaries and compensations so fixed and of the appropriations for salaries and compensations to and for the several departments of the city government, and the board of education, other than for payment of day laborers, shall together be at least one million of dollars less than the amount appropriated therefor during the year eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and the said board of estimate and apportionment shall file with the said final estimate during the month of December in each year, a schedule of the names of all persons whose salaries have been so fixed, the designation of their offices and employments respectively, and the salaries and compensations so fixed for each, which said schedule shall be published in the City Record. In fixing compensations, the salary or compensation to be paid to any person then in office or under employment, may be larger than shall be paid to the person or persons thereafter appointed to the same or similar offices or employments, and provision may be made for the payment of increased salaries to persons who shall have faithfully performed the duties of any office or employment for a period of ten years or more. The number of officers or of employes other than day laborers, shall not be increased beyond the number existing on the thirty-first day of December, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, except that the number of policemen may be increased in the manner now provided by law, and the salary of any office shall not be increased which, on said last mentioned day, amounted to or exceeded two thousand dollars per annum. From and after the filing of such schedule, it shall not be lawful to change the same for a period of one year thereafter, nor to pay a salary or compensation to the incumbent of any office or employment not therein specified, nor at a greater rate than as shall be therein specified.

“§ 6. The powers by this statute conferred are in addition to the powers now possessed by the local authority of any city, and where such local authority is a board of estimate and apportionment, the power so conferred shall be exercised by such board in making up each year the final estimate of said city. And the concurrent vote of all the members of such board shall be requisite for any action under this act.

“§ 7. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed, and every provision of law establishing the rate or amount of fees, percentages, allowances or salaries aforesaid, payable directly or indirectly out of any city treasury, shall be null and void from and after the day and date on which any reduction in the rate or amount of such fees, percentages, allowances or salaries made by or in pursuance of this act shall take effect.

“§ 8. This act shall take effect immediately.”

The Senate returned the resolution relative to the final adjournment of the Legislature, with a message that they had concurred in the passage of the same.

The Senate bill entitled "An act to authorize the county clerk of Kings county to arrange, assort and repair all judgments, decrees, orders and other papers filed or deposited in Kings county clerk's office, and to record and certify mutilated or injured writings affecting the title to real estate in said county, and providing compensation for his services in that respect," was read a third time.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the final passage of said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor hereof, and three-fifths being present, as follows :

it, or which may be entered into under this section, as well as all existing contracts for the collecting and removal of the matters as aforesaid, and the cleaning of the streets, avenues and places in said city, whenever the contractor shall refuse or neglect to perform any of the stipulations of such contract.'

"§ 3. Section 10 of said title of said last-mentioned act, is hereby amended so as to read as follows :

The Private Secretary of the Governor appeared before the bar of the House, and presented five several messages in the following words :

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 13, 1878. }

To the Assembly :

I transmit herewith a copy of the statement of the items of appropriation to which I object, contained in Assembly bill No. 283, entitled "An act making appropriations for certain expenses of government, and supplying deficiencies in former appropriations," which statement was appended to the said bill at the time of signing it, in accordance with section 9 of article 4 of the Constitution.

L. ROBINSON.

STATEMENT of items of appropriation objected to and not approved, contained in Assembly bill No. 283, entitled "An act making appropriations for certain expenses of government, and supplying deficiencies in former appropriations."

"For the law library of the fourth judicial district, the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars, to be paid on bills therefor certified by the presiding justice of said district."

This item is objected to and not approved for the reasons stated for disapproving a similar item in the supply bill of last year, as follows: "It is unequal and unjust to compel the tax-payers of the State to contribute money for the establishment of law libraries in various counties of the State. The practice has gone much too far already. It never should have been begun, and should be stopped at once and finally. * * * There is no more reason for supplying lawyers with their books than in supplying doctors and clergymen with theirs, or farmers and mechanics with their implements and tools. The convenience and advantage which the lawyers and judges will have from these libraries may easily be obtained by voluntary associations, and by contributions from those who are to be benefited by them."

I can see no reason for changing the views then expressed. They apply with equal force to these large appropriations for additions to law libraries, although originally written as to the foundation of one.

An additional reason for disapproving the present item is, that the appropriation is directed "to be paid on bills therefor certified by the presiding justice of said district." There is no such officer known to the judiciary as the "presiding justice" of a district. The presiding justice is a judicial officer of a department, not of a district; a distinction illustrated by the fact, that in the fourth judicial district, the one in question, there is no "presiding justice."

"For the law library of the sixth judicial district, at Delhi, Delaware county, the sum of one thousand dollars, to be paid on bills therefor certified by the justice of said district residing at Delhi."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reasons given for disapproving the last-mentioned item.

"For the law library of the eighth judicial district, the sum of one thousand dollars, to be paid on bills therefor certified by the trustees of said library."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reasons stated for disapproving the last-mentioned item.

"For the law library of the sixth judicial district, located at Binghamton, the sum of two thousand dollars, to be paid on bills therefor certified by Celora E. Martin, Justice of the Supreme Court, residing at Binghamton."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reasons given for the disapproval of the last preceding item.

"For the law library of the seventh judicial district, at Rochester, the sum of one thousand dollars, to be paid on bills therefor certified by the presiding justice of said district."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reasons given for the disapproval of the last preceding item.

"And for each of the other district law libraries of the State, the sum of five hundred dollars, to be paid on bills therefor certified in each case by the presiding justice of such district."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reasons given for the disapproval of the last above-mentioned item, and for the additional reason that the sum appropriated by it is not specifically stated as required by the Constitution. It does not state the number of libraries, nor the sum necessary to pay it. Section 8 of article 7 of the Constitution expressly forbids the payment of moneys from the treasury unless the law making the appropriation distinctly specifies the sum appropriated. It does not appear from this language whether the sum intended to be paid is five hundred dollars, five thousand dollars, or more.

"For printing and binding an amended edition of the New York Code of Public Instruction, to be prepared by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and by him distributed, one to each of the school districts of the State, the sum of twelve thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the reason that no existing law authorizes any such codification. The present bill elsewhere provides for printing, binding, and distributing an amended edition of the school laws of the State. The Code of Instruction, so called, is only ten years old; the new one will contain only the same statutes as the amended edition of the laws mentioned above and some outside notes, and the main expense of compiling it will lie in the annotations, and not in the laws. Even if it were desirable to publish such a code, it would seem wiser to do it at some future time, and not in the same year when a newly revised edition of the general school laws is to be distributed. The distribution of the amended laws will put in the hands of all district authorities the statutes of public instruction as they exist at present. Five or ten years hence, when these statutes may have been amended, it will be far less unnecessary to issue a code.

More than all this, I am informed by the superintendent, that the amount appropriated is not sufficient to accomplish the work specified. It does not seem proper, in these times, to inaugurate the publication of a volume which is to cost an indefinite sum, and which may become a needless and heavy burden on the treasury, nor in any event should it be inaugurated in an appropriation bill without previous legislative authority.

"For repairing the highway upon the Cattaraugus Indian reservation, running from Gowanda through said reservation into the town of Perrysburgh, in Cattaraugus county, changing the line thereof, and for the erection and repair of bridges thereon, the sum of two thousand dollars, to be expended under the supervision of Millen T. Hill, Enoch Taylor, second, and William F. Vosburgh, of Gowanda, aforesaid, who are hereby appointed commissioners for that purpose, who shall each receive out of said sum two dollars per day for each full day occupied by them in and about the repairing of said road, but the total compensation of such commissioners shall not exceed the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars, and no part of the sum hereby appropriated shall be paid over to said commissioners until they shall have executed a bond to the people of this State, to be approved by the Comptroller, conditioned that they will faithfully discharge their duties as such commissioners and truly account under oath to the Comptroller for all moneys received by them for the purpose aforesaid, and no part of said sum shall be expended except upon a plan and estimate of said work, which will complete it within the sum above appropriated."

This item is objected to and not approved for the reason that the Legislature has been forbidden by section 18 of article 3 of the Constitution, to pass any private or local bill, for laying out, altering, working or discontinuing roads, highways and alleys. More than this, chapter 482 of the Laws of 1875, gives full power to the supervisors in the matter of this road if needed.

A similar item in the supply bill of last year was disapproved for like reasons. The prohibition in the Constitution is positive, and no exception is made to it, and it applies as much to Indian lands as any other. The State is not the owner of these lands any more than the counties within which they lie. If the State has any authority at all to build roads and bridges through the Indian reservations, it has conferred all the authority it has upon the counties, but neither State nor county has any right to enter upon these reservations, for any purpose, without the consent of the Indians themselves. If the Indians want the roads they can build them. If white men only want them, they can build them for themselves as in all other cases, provided they obtain the consent of the Indians.

“For repairing the road across the Onondaga Indian reservation, leading from what is known as the ‘Castle Hotel,’ in the town of Onondaga, to a point intersecting the road leading by the house of Edwin Clark, a distance of about one and one-eighth miles, the sum of about five hundred dollars, to be expended under the supervision of John Kelley, of said town, who is hereby appointed a commissioner for that purpose, who shall receive out of said sum three dollars per day for each full day occupied by him in the discharge of such duty, but for not exceeding ten days in the aggregate, and who shall execute to the people of this State a bond, to be approved by the Comptroller, for the faithful discharge of his duties as such commissioner.”

This item was contained in the supply bill of last year in precisely the same language, and was then, and is now, objected to and not approved for the same reasons given for disapproving the last mentioned item.

“For the Clerk of the Assembly, for preparing the appendix to the Clerk’s Manual, pursuant to the resolution of the Assembly, adopted May 24, 1877, three hundred dollars.”

This item is objected to and not approved. The Constitution and the statutes alike forbid this appropriation. Under the nominal excuse of extra services prior to 1874, large amounts were annually voted to the clerks and employes of the Senate and Assembly. By an amendment to the Constitution, adopted in November of that year, the Legislature was forbidden to grant any extra compensation to any public officer, servant, agent or contractor.

Chapter 112 of the Laws of 1875 provides for the compensation of the clerks of the Senate and Assembly a salary of $3,500 each. Further allowances by that statute being the compensation of the Clerk of the Assembly up to $5,250. The statute then declares that “no extra allowance shall be made to the officers and employes above named on any pretense whatever.” The appropriation for the payment of the regular compensation has already been made in the general appropriation bill. The statute of 1875 passed immediately after the amendment to the Constitution took effect, evidently shows the construction put upon the amendment by the Legislature. That construction is clearly right, since under the pretense of extra services any amount may be allowed and the constitutional prohibition utterly nullified. The intent of the Constitution was to destroy the whole system of extra allowances and the appropriations in the present bill are in open violation of that intent. Any reason that may be given for voting away thousands of dollars to an officer who receives five or six thousand dollars for six months work may be as well urged for extra compensation to other and less richly salaried officers.

“For preparing and classifying under appropriate headings for the use of the Legislature, an index to papers on file in the Assembly from eighteen hundred and seventy-three to eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, both inclusive, pursuant to resolution of the Assembly adopted May twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, seven hundred and fifty dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reason given for the disapproval of the last-mentioned item.

"And for preparing, under appropriate headings, a complete index to the laws of the State from eighteen hundred and seventy-five to eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, both inclusive, pursuant to resolution of the Assembly, adopted May twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, one thousand dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reason given for the disapproval of the last mentioned item; and for the further reason that even if it were in the power of the Legislature to pay it, it seems an exorbitant allowance. The Secretary of State is obliged by statute to make a complete official index to the Laws of the State each year. To combine these indices for three years into one is a very short and simple task, and would be richly compensated by an allowance of one hundred dollars.

"For the journal clerk of the Assembly, for preparing and classifying under appropriate headings, under the direction and supervision of the Clerk of the Assembly, a complete index to bills introduced in the Assembly and not printed, from eighteen hundred and seventy-three to eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, both inclusive, pursuant to resolution of the Assembly, adopted May twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, six hundred and seventy-five dollars."

This item, which is simply a duplicate of one of $750 to the Clerk for the same services mentioned above, is objected to and not approved, for the same reasons given for the disapproval of that item.

"And for preparing and classifying under appropriate headings, under the direction and supervision of the Clerk of the Assembly, a complete index to all bills printed during the years eighteen hundred and seventy to eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, both inclusive, pursuant to resolution of the Assembly, adopted May twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, one thousand two hundred and fifty dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reasons given for the disapproval of the last-mentioned item.

"For Henry A. Glidden, late Clerk of the Senate, for preparing a continuation of the general index of documents of the Senate and Assembly, from eighteen hundred and seventy to eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, and distributing the same, pursuant to resolution of the Senate, adopted May twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, the sum of twelve hundred dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reason given for the disapproval of the last-mentioned item.

"And for preparing an index to the journal and testimony taken before the Senate on the trial of the charges against De Witt C. Ellis, and distributing the same, pursuant to a resolution of the Senate, adopted August seventeenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, the sum of five hundred dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reason given for the disapproval of the last-mentioned item.

"For the Clerk of the Senate for preparing an index to the journal and proceedings of the Senate, in the trial of the charges against John F. Smyth, Superintendent of the Insurance Department, and distributing the same pursuant to resolution of the Senate, adopted March twenty-four, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, the sum of five hundred dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the same reason given for the disapproval of the last-mentioned item, and for the further reason that chapter 112 of the Laws of 1875, above cited, provides that there shall be paid annually to the Clerk of the Senate $500, and to the Clerk of the Assembly $750, for indexing the journals, bills, and documents of the Senate and Assembly. Under this statute, I suppose it was the duty of the Clerk to prepare the index named in the appropriation without any extra compensation whatever, and in that view of the case, this item is even more improper than those above alluded to.

"For the county of Cayuga as an equitable reimbursement for certain expenses incurred and paid for the two trials in eighteen hundred and seventy-three and eighteen hundred and seventy-four, and the appeals thereon of Michael Donohue, a convict, indicted for the murder of a convict in Auburn prison, including all disbursements made necessary during the incarceration of said Donohue, prior to, pending, and subsequent to the trials; for like expenses incurred and paid for the trials, in eighteen hundred and seventy-four, of John Coughlin, Patrick Egan, Thomas E. Hardy, and Patrick Clifford, convicts, indicted for assault with a deadly weapon upon a keeper in said prison, including like disbursements; for like expenses incurred and paid for the trial in eighteen hundred and seventy-five, of Edwin Thomas, a convict, indicted for the murder of a convict in said prison, including like disbursements; for like expenses incurred and paid for the trial, in eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, of Harvey Thorpe, a convict, indicted for the murder of a convict in said prison, including like disbursements; and for like expenses incurred and paid for the trial, in eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, of William Barr, a convict, indicted for the murder of a keeper in said prison, including like disbursements, the sum of seven thousand and eleven dollars and forty-five cents."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the reason that it is, in every proper sense, a private claim, consisting of very many separate items, and, under the Constitution, is subject to the audit and allowance of the Board of Audit, before the Legislature has power to appropriate money for its payment. This objection alone is fatal to the item without considering the question whether such an appropriation ought ever to be made to counties to defray the expenses of trials for crimes committed within their borders. The same item was contained in the supply bill of last year, except that it did not provide for the expenses of the trials of Thorpe and Barr. The reasons just stated were then given for its disapproval, but the item has not yet been submitted to the Board of Audit. Were this item approved, the Comptroller would have no power to pay it, since it has not been audited as required by the Constitution.

The item of this year differs from that of last only in that it is now called an "equitable reimbursement." This does not avoid the necessity of submitting the claim to the Board of Audit, since, by the statute establishing that board, it is to hear the testimony and to consider what amount should "equitably be paid by the State to the claimants."

"For the city of Syracuse, as an equitable reimbursement and voluntary payment of the local assessment and expenses of paving on Salina street, in said city, in front of the Salt Springs office, in eighteen hundred and seventy-six, three hundred and eighty-two dollars and seventy-two cents; of the local assessment and expenses of constructing a sewer in Leavenworth avenue and Clark street, in said city, in front of lands belonging to the State, in eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, two thousand four hundred and seventy-nine dollars and seven cents."

This item is objected to, and not approved. In objecting to a similar item last year, I used the following language: "On principle, the State ought not to be compelled to pay to its municipal corporations assessments for local improvements within their limits. The property of the State is ordinarily of much more benefit to the particular locality in which it lies than to the State itself, and to sanction the principle that the cities and villages of the State may, in their discretion, assess State property for local improvements, is to open the door for unlimited calls and drafts on the treasury for moneys to be expended at the discretion of such local authorities. Such assessment and taxation upon State property is beyond the jurisdiction of such municipalities. Their power is derived from the State itself, and it is not to be admitted that they can impose liabilities on the superior power which created them. In cases where it may be proper for the State to contribute to such expenses, the Commissioners of the Land Office should investigate the matter, and the State should voluntarily pay such proportion as it may deem just and equitable."

I am still of the opinion then expressed, and cannot, therefore, assent to this appropriation.

"For the city of Utica, for the local assessment and expense of grading Canal street from the old city line to the Whitesboro road, five hundred and fifty-six dollars and twelve cents."

This item is objected to and not approved for the reasons last above stated, and for the additional reason that the assessment in question is of an unprecedented character, the State property upon which it is levied being the Erie canal. To levy assessments against the State upon this highway of commerce is wholly inadmissible under any circumstances. To commence such a practice at a period when it is claimed that the taxpayers of the State should take upon themselves the payment of all the expenses of maintaining the canals, is intolerable.

"For the Blind Asylum, at Batavia, for securing a supply of water for fire and other purposes, for the purchase of apparatus for giving instruction to the blind, for repairing rooms, for building additional work-room, and for additional bedding, ten thousand dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the reason that I learn, from official sources and from persons immediately connected with the management of the institution, that there is no immediate necessity for the expenditure provided for by this appropriation, and that no injury or serious inconvenience will be caused by its omission.

"For finishing the basement and first stories of the State Inebriate Asylum, at Binghamton, the sum of seven thousand five hundred and thirty-four dollars and thirty cents."

This item is objected to and not approved for the reason that the basement and first stories of the building have been found sufficient for all the purposes for which they are required ever since the building was brought into use. The proofs of its benefit to the public, thus far, have not been such as to encourage a further expenditure for construction.

"For John Flanagan, as defendant in the action hereinafter named, the sum of six hundred and sixty-four dollars and sixty-six cents, being the amount in full payment of the principal of two judgments for costs against the people of this State in the action commenced by the late Attorney-General against John Flanagan, which judgments were docketed in the clerk's office of the county of New York, the one on the eighth day of March, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and the other (affirming the first judgment) on the eighth day of November, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the reason that another provision of this bill appropriates four hundred and eighty-one dollars to John B. Haskin, on account of the same judgment. An affidavit presented to me shows that the four hundred and eighty-one dollars was allowed to John B. Haskin by the Board of Audit for this same judgment. This being so, the present appropriation to Flanagan is simply a second payment by the State of the same claim, and for a private claim which has never been allowed by the Board of Audit.

"For John Flanagan * * * and the further sum of ninety dollars and eighty-two cents for interest on said judgments."

This item is objected to and not approved for the same reason for disapproving the previous item.

"For the payment of a canal certificate, with interest thereon, given by the late Canal Commissioner in charge of the middle division of the canals, to C. L. McAlpine in eighteen hundred and seventy-two, addressed to the Auditor of the Canal Department, for extraordinary expenses incurred in the discharge of his duties as a resident engineer, the sum of eight hundred and twenty dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved, for the reason that I learn from the records of the Canal Board and the Canal Department, that its payment has been repeatedly refused by different Auditors of the Canal Department and by the Canal Board, and the Canal Board has once, at least, held that the claim should be properly presented to the Board of Audit. This having been the repeated decision of the canal authorities, it does not seem that the Legislature should reverse it.

"For Weed, Parsons & Co., * * * for printing, expressage and postage for the Commissioners to Revise the Statutes, payable on the certificate of the chairman of the Commissioners, as the work progresses, five thousand dollars."

This item is objected to and not approved. The total expense of this Commission to the State cannot fall beneath $200,000, and may go beyond it. For this vast expenditure the State has received, in my judgment, no benefit and much harm. The Commission ceased to exist on the first of the present month. There is no such officer in existence as the chairman of the Commissioners, so that there could be no official certificate on which the appropriation could be paid, if it were approved. Neither is it proper to provide for paying printing, expressage and postage "as the work progresses," since no provision has been made for the progress of the work.

PAYABLE FROM THE ORDINARY CANAL REPAIR FUND.

"For the construction of a foot bridge over the Erie canal, on Kohler street, in the village of Tonawanda, the sum of five hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary."

This item is objected to, and not approved. I learn, upon inquiry in the Canal Department, that there is no money in the treasury which can safely be applied to building bridges. The whole amount appropriated for ordinary repairs for the current fiscal year, was $640,000. Of this amount $263,067.66 were expended by the Canal Commissioners during the first four months before the Superintendent of Public Works came into office, most of it having been expended during the last two months of navigation. This left for the Superintendent only the meagre sum of $376,932.34 with which to open the canals, to manage and operate them during eight months, up to the first of October next. It is evident that only by the closest economy and the avoidance of every expenditure which can possibly be dispensed with can he hope to do this. If any appropriations of this character were proper at all, they should have been placed in the bill making appropriations for ordinary repairs.

“For the construction of a draw in the bridge over the navigable channel of the Oneida river, at Brewerton, between the counties of Oswego and Onondaga, the sum of seven thousand five hundred dollars.”

This item is objected to, and not approved, for the same reasons given for disapproving the last mentioned item.

“For the construction of a lift-bridge over the Oswego canal, in the city of Syracuse, on Salina street, at its intersection with Bridge street, in place of the bridge now over said canal at that point, which was authorized by chapter three hundred and eighty-two of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-four, the sum of twelve thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary.”

This item is objected to, and not approved, for the reasons given for disapproving the last mentioned item.

“For repairing the stop-gate in the Genesee river feeder at Rochester, and for draining and putting in sanitary condition said feeder, the sum of one thousand four hundred dollars, to be expended under the direction of the State Engineer and Surveyor.”

This item is objected to, and not approved, for the reasons given for disapproving the last mentioned item.

“For the construction of a suitable bridge over the Erie canal, in the village of Tonawanda, connecting Delaware street in Erie county with Main street in Niagara county, the sum of twelve thousand dollars; said bridge to be built of such materials and in such manner as the State Engineer and Surveyor shall direct; provided, however, that before said bridge shall be constructed, or any portion of this appropriation shall be expended, the village of Tonawanda and the owners of lands taken for or adjoining the site for said bridge shall indemnify and release the State from all and every claim for damages or compensation for land taken, or for other damages, and provided further that said village shall have first, at its own cost, constructed the necessary abutments and approaches for such bridge.”

This item is objected to, and not approved, for the reasons given for disapproving the last mentioned item.

Chapter 482 of the Laws of 1875 has conferred upon boards of supervisors the power to protect and preserve, subject to the Laws of this State, fish and shellfish in all waters of the county. The intention of the statute is to delegate these matters to the local authorities, and there they should remain. Bills of this character have been uniformly disapproved where the supervisors had clearly the power to act in the premises.

STATE OF NEW YORK—EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, May 13, 1878. }

To the Assembly :

I return, without approval, Assembly bill No. 367, entitled "An act in relation to canals."

The people of this State, having paid over thirty millions of dollars by direct taxation for the benefit of the canals, and finding their revenues diminishing and their expenses increasing, determined to make a complete change of canal administration and management. For this purpose they adopted in 1876, by a majority of over four hundred and fifty thousand, an amendment to the Constitution placing the whole power and responsibility of the management in the hands of one executive head, denominated the Superintendent of Public Works. It is a most important experiment, and it is not too much to say that upon its success depends the prosperity, if not the very existence, of the canals. Every officer of the government, every member of the Legislature, and every citizen of the State, should make all reasonable efforts to aid the Superintendent in producing the most favorable results.

After many delays and embarrassments, a superintendent was appointed, and entered upon his duties about three months ago. On the 15th of April, some two or three weeks earlier than usual, the principal canals were opened, and are now in full and successful operation, encouraging the hope of a largely increased business, and a material reduction in expenses, results which will be hailed with the highest satisfaction by all sincere friends of the canals and of the commercial prosperity of the State and city of New York.

At this trying crisis in the fate of the canals, the present bill is presented to me for approval, and it becomes my duty to examine it with reference to the effect which it may produce in securing or preventing the success of the trial in which we are engaged. I regret to find that it appears throughout to contain provisions none of which are likely to effect any good, and many of which cannot fail to embarrass seriously the Superintendent, and to retard all his efforts to produce the expected results. It seems to be, to a large extent, a reversal of the will of the people as expressed in the amendment to the Constitution. Many of its provisions are in direct conflict with that instrument. All of them appear to be in a spirit of hostility to it, as exemplified in the following brief statement:

First. The Constitution expressly charges the Superintendent with the "execution of all laws relating to the repair and navigation of the canals." This explicit provision necessarily carries with it the power to purchase materials and pay for them, to employ laborers and pay their wages, and certainly includes canal appropriation laws. The powers thus given by the Constitution are all taken away by this bill, and placed in the hands of paymasters, officers never before known in the administration of the canals, even when the expenses were at least eight times larger than they are expected to be under the Superintendent.

Second. The power to appoint all persons employed in the care and management of the canals except collectors of tolls, and that in the department of the State Engineer and Surveyor, is expressly given in the Constitution to the Superintendent. The bill takes away this power, and provides for the appointment of three paymasters by the Commissioners of the Canal Fund. If they may be authorized to appoint three, so they may be to appoint three hundred or any larger number, and also purchasing agents, employing agents, inspectors, and so on until the Superintendent is shorn of every vestige of power which the Constitution has given him, and the canals involved in worse profligacy and ruin than that from which they have recently been rescued. It is worthy of note that in this section the bill overturns a provision of law which has existed ever since the institution of the Commissioners of the Canal Fund, requiring that at all their meetings the presence of the Comptroller should be necessary to make the quorum. This act dispenses with that requirement without, in form, repealing or amending it.

Third. The Constitution requires that the Superintendent and his assistants shall give security in such amounts as the Legislature shall require, and the Legislature, in view of the fact that all payments are to be made through the Superintendent and his assistants, fixed the security to be given by them at very large amounts, to wit, $50,000 for the Superintendent and $20,000 for each assistant. That security has been given, amounting in all to $110,000. This act fixes no amount of security to be given by the paymasters, but leaves it to the Commissioners of the Canal Fund, who are to make the appointments, to fix the security at any sum which they may choose. A merely nominal sum would meet all the requirements of the bill. Still worse, it provides that in case of the disability of a paymaster the commissioners of the Canal Fund may appoint a person to discharge his duties temporarily. It contains no provision for requiring any security whatever from such temporary appointees, and defalcations by such substitutes might occur, for which the State would have no chance of reimbursement.

Fourth. The services of paymasters, if appointed, would be useless, embarrassing to the Superintendent, and a needless additional expense at a time when he is under the most absolute necessity of reducing his expenses to the lowest possible dollar. The whole amount appropriated for ordinary repairs for the current fiscal year, commencing October 1, 1877, was $640,000. Of this sum the Canal Commissioners had expended $263,067.66 before the Superintendent was appointed, leaving to him only the small sum of $376,932.34 with which to pay all the expenses of opening the canals and keeping them in running order until the first of October next.

Fifth. The Constitution leaves it entirely optional with the Superintendent to appoint one or two, or three assistants, as he may deem proper. The bill, in direct violation of this provision, declares that he shall appoint three.

Sixth. The whole scope and spirit of the amendment puts it in the power of the Superintendent to make such divisions upon the canals as he may find most needful and convenient for their efficient and economical management. The bill provides that he shall divide the canals into three divisions, and that one of the proposed paymasters and one assistant superintendent shall be assigned to each division.

Seventh. The bill after making elaborate provisions of a character never before heard of in this State, forbidding the appointment or discharge of any person for political reasons, further prescribes that "Any three citizens of the neighborhood where such violation occurred who are cognizant of the same, may make complaint thereof on oath before a justice of the Supreme Court having jurisdiction in the county where such violation is alleged to have occurred, whose duty it shall be forthwith to summon before him such official against whom such charges have been made, to hear such charges, answer and determine the truth thereof." The justice is to hear the proofs and give a certificate which may be presented to the Governor, and the Governor may remove the Superintendent. It is not likely that any justice of the Supreme Court could be found who would assume such a jurisdiction, and set up such an inquisition as is here provided. It is entirely foreign to all the powers given to the judiciary, or to the justices of that court by the Constitution. It is neither an action, nor a proceeding in law or equity, and the justice can neither give a judgment nor make an order in the matter. It is an empty extra-judicial proceeding altogether. The certificate which the justice is authorized to give is not of any fact, nor of any adjudication. It is simply the expression of opinion on the part of the justice as to what was the secret motive acting upon the mind of the Superintendent in making an appointment or a removal in the discharge of his duty. The presentation of it to the Governor, and the conferring upon him by this act of the power of removal, may be regarded as superfluous. The Constitution itself gives to him that power without the interposition of any justice, or any complainants, or any legislative act, if he chooses to exercise it; and he is fully clothed with the power to investigate every abuse, every act of mal-administration, and to make the removal whenever it appears proper to him.

Eighth. The complaint by three citizens may be made by any three disappointed applicants for places, or by any three discharged workmen, and it may be made to any justice having jurisdiction in the county, who is forthwith to summon the Superintendent before him to hear such complaints and answers. Every Justice of the Supreme Court has jurisdiction in every county of the State. And this action can be taken by the remotest justice in the State. The Superintendent may thus be summoned forthwith from Buffalo to Brooklyn, and before he is through with the hearing there, he may be summoned by another three complainants before a justice in St. Lawrence or Chautauqua counties on these errands which, as has been seen above, are to end in nothing, but which produce the annoyance and embarrassment of taking away forthwith at any time the Superintendent from the most important duties of his important position. It seems difficult to imagine any provision which could be more annoying to the Superintendent, more embarrassing to his action, more certain to bring disaster upon the experiment from which the people are hoping so much.

Ninth. Under the express and comprehensive prescription of the Constitution, the canals have been put in order and opened. A very considerable business has already been transacted and is upon the books of the department. Men are employed and plans matured. This act, if approved, is to take effect immediately, and will involve an entire change in the method of book-keeping and the accounts of the Canal Department. Confusion and uncertainty will be the inevitable result. Besides this, the bill forces upon the Superintendent the disadvantage of the credit system instead of cash payments for tools and materials, and thus two formidable difficulties are added to a situation already sufficiently involved.

Want of time prevents me from going into the details of many other objectionable features of the bill. From first to last its effect is to overthrow almost every provision of the amendment of the Constitution, to take away from the Superintendent all the powers which that amendment gives him, to leave him constantly at the mercy of disappointed applicants for places or discharged employes, to tie up his hands and embarrass his action in every direction so as to prevent the possibility of his making the new system of administration a success. Its violations of the letter and of the whole tone and spirit of the Constitution are so apparent that the law would doubtless be held to be a nullity, if it were approved.

The new system might be aided to some extent by judicious legislation, but such legislation is not indispensable, as the Constitution gives ample powers in itself for the care and management of the canals, and it seems unwise to interfere with it whilst it is going on with every promise of success, before it has had a fair trial, through at least one season of navigation.

Strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert the following :

“SECTION 1. No election of trustees of any village incorporated since 1875, under chapter 291 of the Laws of 1870, entitled ‘An act to provide for the incorporation of villages,’ held in the year 1878, and before the passage of this act, shall be invalid on account of any failure of any of the electors at such election to designate in their ballots the respective terms of office of the persons voted for for such trustees, or on account of any disregard of such designation by the inspectors of such election in declaring the result thereof ; but the persons for whom a majority of votes shall have been cast shall be deemed duly elected trustees of said village, and such trustees shall, on or before the first day of June, 1878, meet, together with the president of such village, and the said president shall, in their presence, determine, by lot, who of said trustees shall serve for one year, and who of them for two years. The smallest majority of said trustees shall serve for two years, and the largest minority for one year. The president shall make and file in the office of the clerk of said village a certificate stating the names of said trustees, and the term of office of each as so determined.

“§ 2. The official acts of the trustees of such village since the annual election in the year 1875 are hereby legalized and confirmed, and shall be deemed of full force and validity.

"§ 3. Nothing herein contained shall affect any action or proceeding now pending in any court of this State.

"§ 4. This act shall take effect immediately."

The amendment having been read,

The Senate returned the bill entitled "An act to confer additional powers upon the common council of the city of New York," with a message that they had concurred in the passage of the same, with the following amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert the following:

"SECTION 1. The common council of the city of New York is hereby authorized to direct the department of public parks of the city of New York to restore Tompkins square as a public park or square.

"§ 3. The board of estimate and apportionment of the city of New York is hereby directed to include in the final estimates of the amounts required to pay the expenses of conducting the public business of the city and county of New York, during the year eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, an amount sufficient to pay both principal and interest of the fund or stock authorized to be issued by this act.

Mr. Speaker announced as such committee Messrs. Daly, Fish, I. I. Hayes, Fitzgerald, and Foster.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the Senate, with a message informing that the Assembly have non-concurred in their amendments, have appointed a committee of conference thereon, and request a like committee on the part of the Senate.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the Senate, with a message informing that the Assembly have concurred in their amendments.

The Senate returned the bill entitled "An act to secure better public administration in the city of New York," with a message that they had concurred in the passage of the same, with the following amendments :

Strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert the following :

"SECTION 1. No ordinance or resolution of the common council of the city of New York shall take effect unless approved by the mayor, or passed over his veto by a vote of three-fourths of all the members elected to said board.

"§ 2. No ordinance or resolution which involves any liability, or requires the expenditure, outlay or payment of money, shall be valid unless passed by a vote of three-fourths of all the members elected to said board.

"§ 3. When a proposed ordinance or resolution relates to an expenditure for which an assessment may be imposed, and unless and except when the proposed expenditure and assessment are for a sewer, culvert, receiving basin, drain or other work connected with the sewerage or drainage of said city, such ordinance or resolution shall not be passed unless the following facts shall appear to the satisfaction of the common council :

"1. That a petition for such improvement, subscribed by the owners, or their attorneys in fact, of at least one-half of the front feet on the line of the proposed improvement, exclusive of property owned by the city, has, after the passage of this act, been presented and filed with the clerk of the common council, and that each signature to such petition has been duly acknowledged and proved in the manner required by law for the record of deeds of real estate, the sufficiency of which acknowledgments or proofs shall have been certified to by the corporation counsel, or one of his assistants, in writing, attached thereto, and that such petition, acknowledgments, proofs, and certificate have been for at least ten days next preceding so filed and open to the inspection of all persons interested therein.

"2. That such petition, exclusive of the acknowledgments and proofs thereof, has, since its filing, been published in the City Record, by direction of the clerk of the common council, for at least ten days before any action is taken thereon. The resolution of the common council to the effect that such improvement has been petitioned for by the owners of at least one-half of the property, exclusive of property owned by the city, as herein required, and that such publication has been made, shall be conclusive evidence of such facts, and the same cannot thereafter be questioned in any manner whatever. Whenever an exception shall have been filed with the clerk of the common council to the sufficiency of any such petition, stating the grounds thereof, no action shall be taken by said common council in regard to said improvement until the corporation counsel, or one of his assistants, shall have certified to said common council, in writing, that in his opinion such petition is in conformity with the requirements of this section. And when the proposed ordinance or resolution relates to an expenditure for which no assessment can be imposed, such ordinance or resolution shall not be passed by the common council unless the head of the department or chief officer having charge of the execution of the matter to which the same relates, shall also certify that the expenditure proposed is required to be made for the necessary purposes of the city, and the reason for such necessity.

"§ 4. No work for which an assessment may be imposed, shall hereafter be proceeded with in said city, unless authorized by ordinance or resolution of the common council, passed as hereinbefore required, and no work authorized shall be performed except by contract entered into in the manner hereinafter required; provided that the expenditure of the department of docks may be made, as now provided by law, until the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine; and provided further, that all works connected with the supply and distribution of pure and wholesome water in said city, shall and may be prosecuted in the manner now authorized by law; and, provided further, that it shall not be necessary to make a contract for any work or job, the whole expense of which shall not exceed the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars. No liability shall attach to the city of New York, nor shall any expense become chargeable upon any public fund therein on any contract hereafter made unless the same shall be entered into and executed according to the terms of this act; and whenever by any provision of law it is or it may be required or directed that a contract shall be founded on sealed bids or proposals, and whenever (unless with reference to expenses to be borne from the yearly taxes it is otherwise expressly provided, and excepting also the expenditures of the law department), any contract is to be entered into for an amount exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, such contract hereafter to be made, and the expense thereof shall become and be a charge against the city or against the appropriate board or fund therein, as the case may be provided, however, that the officer entering into the same shall have first complied with the provisions of this section, and not otherwise. The following provisions shall be observed by every department, board or officer in said city authorized to make such contracts. And whenever the word "officer" is used in this act, it shall be held and construed to refer to and mean any and every department or departments, head of department, or head of departments, board or boards, head of board or heads of boards, officer or officers, agent or agents, employe or employes, and person or persons connected with the public business in said city of New York: First. The officer charged with the duty of making any contract shall prepare and file in his office a form of proposed contract, including specifications for any work to be executed, or material or supply to be procured. Such specifications shall fully describe the work to be performed, and the materials and supplies to be furnished, and also the manner in which the same shall be performed, executed or furnished. They shall also state the quantities and quality of the work, material or supplies required, as nearly as the same can be ascertained. No such form of proposed contract, including specification, shall be filed until the form thereof shall have been approved by the counsel to the corporation. Second. Thereupon such officer shall cause to be published in the City Record, for at least ten days, a notice inviting proposals for the performance, execution or furnishing of such work, materials or supplies. Such notice shall state where the specifications thereof may be examined and the character and amount of security to be furnished. It shall also state when and where blank forms of proposals may be procured, when and where such proposals will be received, and when and where the same will be opened. Third the proposals shall be in such form as may be prescribed by the officer inviting the same, and shall contain the following particulars: 1. The name and place of residence of the person making the same. 2. The statement that such proposal is made without any connection with any other person submitting a proposal for the same contract, and is in all respects fair and free from collusion and fraud. 3. The statement that no person connected with the government of the city or county of New York, or any board, department or bureau therein, is directly or indirectly interested in such proposal, or in any work or supplies to which it relates, or in any profits to result therefrom. Such proposal shall be verified by affidavit subscribed by the party making the same, that the several statements therein contained are true. If any such statement therein contained shall be false, and known so to be to the person or persons subscribing the same, such person or persons shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be liable to the punishment for that offense provided by law, and shall forfeit all rights resulting from such proposals. No proposal shall be accepted unless accompanied by the consent, in writing, of two freeholders, in the city of New York, that if the contract be awarded to the person making the proposal they will, upon its being so awarded, bind themselves in the amount specified in the notice inviting such proposal, which shall not be less than a sum equal to one-half of the estimated cost of the work, materials, or supplies, to be fixed by the officer in charge of the execution of the same, for the faithful performance of such contract. The consent of such freeholders before required shall be accompanied by the affidavit of each of the persons signing the same, to be taken before any officer authorized by law to administer an oath, that he is a freeholder in the city of New York, and is worth the amount of the security required for the completion of the contract and stated in the notice inviting proposals therefor, over and above all his debts of every nature, and over and above his liabilities as bail, surety, or otherwise, and that he has offered himself as a security in good faith, and with an intention to execute the bond required for such contract, if the contract shall be awarded to the person or persons for whom he becomes surety. Fourth. Whenever any proposal shall after the passage of this act have been accepted and the contract based thereon awarded pursuant to the provisions of law or ordinance, the contract thereunder, when executed by the contractor, as by this statute authorized, shall be accompanied by a bond in the penalty mentioned in the notice inviting proposals therefor, executed by the persons consenting to become bound as sureties, or by such other persons as shall be substituted for them by the consent of the officer making such contract, conditioned for the faithful performance of the contract, and every provision therein contained. No contract, however, shall be executed unless the sureties proposed shall have been first approved by the comptroller, and his approval must also be obtained to the sufficiency of any substituted sureties.

“§ 5. At least five days' notice must be given by the head of the department or officer advertising for sealed bids and proposals to the comptroller, of the date and place fixed for opening the same, and at the time and place fixed, or at the adjourned meeting, as hereinafter provided, and in the presence of the comptroller, if he is in attendance, the bids or proposals shall be publicly opened by said head of department. The time for opening bids or proposals may be adjourned by the head of the department for any period not exceeding five days, and at least two days' notice must be given to the comptroller to attend at such adjourned meeting.

“§ 6. The lowest bid or proposal made in conformity to the provisions of this act, for work let on sealed bids or proposals, shall be accepted by the head of the department or officer, unless such officer shall, within five days after the bids are opened, certify to the comptroller, in writing, that it would, in his opinion, be for the public interest that the same should be rejected, and stating fully the reasons for such opinion. If, within ten days after such certification, the comptroller concur with the head of the department, such bid or proposal shall be rejected; but if said comptroller refuse or fail, within the time aforesaid, to concur, then the head of the department or officer shall accept said lowest bid.

“§ 7. If the lowest bid or proposal be rejected, or if the accepted bidder shall refuse or neglect for three days, after written notice, to give proper security to the satisfaction of the comptroller, or to execute, with his sureties, the contract, the work shall be readvertised and relet as hereinbefore provided, but the time above specified may be extended by the head of the department having charge of such work for not exceeding seven days; and whenever any contract is hereafter awarded and executed, and the contractor fails to proceed with the work, or abandons the same, the head of the department or officer having charge of such work shall give notice of such failure or abandonment to the sureties of the contractor; and it shall be the duty of such sureties, within ten days after such notice, to proceed with the work and continue the same until completed in accordance with the requirements of said contract. In all contracts hereafter executed, in name or in behalf of said mayor, aldermen and commonalty of said city, where, upon notice by the head of the department or officer having charge of such work, the sureties shall fail to proceed with the work, and continue the same until completion, or where, after such notice, the sureties shall, in the opinion expressed in writing by head of the department or officer, willfully violate any of the conditions of the contract or unnecessarily delay the completion thereof, then, and in either of such events, it shall be the duty of such head of department or officer to readvertise and relet the work as herein provided; and upon the same being completed pursuant to said reletting, the comptroller shall certify to the counsel to the corporation the expense of the work in all cases where such expense exceeds the amount provided in the original contract to be paid therefor; and it shall thereupon be the duty of said counsel to commence and prosecute all actions and proceedings necessary to recover such expense so in excess from the contractor and his sureties, and to pay over the amount to the city treasury. But, nevertheless, if the work be one for which an assessment may be imposed, an assessment shall be imposed in the manner hereinafter prescribed for all expense on account of such work which may be incurred by said city, the amount of such expense to be determined by the certificate of the head of the department in charge of such work.

"§ 8. The head of the department or officer, when he accepts the lowest bid, and before entering into any contract for the performance of any work, for which work or any part thereof payment is to be made from moneys raised from assessment or from bonds other than revenue bonds so called, shall certify to the comptroller the expense of the same; and when a special appropriation has been made by the board of estimate and apportionment covering the expense of the work, the comptroller shall indorse the amount of such appropriation upon the certificate of the head of the department, and advise the department of such indorsement, whereupon the contract shall be entered into. But the provisions of this section shall not apply in cases where a contract has been executed after a special appropriation has been made for any particular work, and where the contractor and his sureties have failed to proceed with the work or have abandoned the same as in the preceding section provided, unless the lowest bid for such abandoned work, when readvertised and relet, exceeds the amount of such special appropriation, in which case such excess shall be certified by the head of the department or officer to the comptroller, and until a further special appropriation is made providing for such excess, no contract shall be entered into by said head of department for the completion of the work. No special appropriation shall at any time be made by the board of estimate and apportionment for any work in excess of the amounts authorized by law to be expended for such purpose.

"§ 9. Before any contract is entered into as herein provided, the person or persons whose bid is accepted must satisfy himself or themselves as to all matters relating to the work to be performed, and by entering into the contract such person or persons shall be excluded from thereafter raising any question or claim as to or on account of any representation by said mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York, or any officer or officers of said city in reference to any matter or thing relating to said work. No extra work shall be authorized by any contract.

"§ 10. On no contract for work, for which work or any part thereof payment is to be made from moneys raised or to be raised by assessment or from bonds other than revenue bonds so called, entered into as herein authorized, shall the said mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York be liable, and no judgment can be recovered thereon or entered, or execution issued or enforced against said city beyond the amount of the special appropriation made to cover the expense of the work embraced in such contract, and indorsed by the comptroller as aforesaid on the certificate of the head of the department and inserted in said contract as the consideration to be paid for the performance of the same. Provided that this section shall not be construed to refer to any part of such work which is specifically to be paid for out of the yearly appropriation from taxes.

"§ 11. Any officer or employe of the said mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York, or person appointed to perform or charged with performing any duty for said city, who knowingly shall include in any specification work not required or intended to be executed, or knowingly shall certify to the performance of any work which has not been executed, or to the performance of the same in accordance with the provisions of any contract or specification, when not in fact in accordance therewith, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Every officer, employe or other person who is charged with the duty of inspecting or supervising such work, or reporting upon the same to the head of the department, shall be held to have knowingly given such certificate when the same is not true, unless he can satisfactorily show to the contrary. Any person in this section referred to who makes or gives a false certificate as to the performance or execution of any work shall also forfeit his office or employment and all salary or pay due him, and shall not thereafter be employed in any capacity by or on behalf of the said mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York.

“§ 12. Inspectors and all other persons appointed to or charged with the duty of superintending or inspecting any work now being, or which may hereafter be performed, pursuant to any authority heretofore, or which may hereafter be given, must be persons of skill, having practical experience and knowledge of the particular description of work which they are appointed to superintend or inspect, and the head of any department or officer who knowingly, or without due and proper inquiry, appoints as an inspector or superintendent of any work any person not qualified as aforesaid, may be removed from office therefor, and such appointment shall be void.

“§ 13. No person whose appointment is void as aforesaid, or who being qualified as hereinbefore provided, is appointed inspector or superintendent of work, but who fails to be in daily attendance, unless absent from sickness or other sufficient cause, of which due notice shall be given to the head of the department in which he is employed inspecting or supervising such work as the same proceeds, shall have any claim against, or shall be paid or entitled to receive from the city any sum or sums whatever for or on account of any services rendered as such inspector, superintendent, or otherwise.

“§ 14. On any contract made or entered into prior to the passage of the statute chapter five hundred and eighty, Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-two, and certified to by the commissioners appointed by said act, within the time fixed by said act, and before their final adjournment, and for which contract no assessment has been imposed, the contractor shall be charged, and shall pay to the city interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum for advances made from the date of the advance or payment to the date of the completion of the work and acceptance of the same by the department, and for advances on work executed under contracts certified as aforesaid, the comptroller shall certify to the board of assessors the interest at said rate on said advances from the date of the completion of the work, and on all advances for work executed otherwise than by contract, or pursuant to contract entered into subsequent to the passage of said statute chapter five hundred and eighty, Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-two, from the respective dates of such advances or payments, and in each case until sixty days after the date of the comptroller's certificate. But no assessment shall be made by virtue of this section for any amount in excess of the sum actually advanced by the city, with the interest thereon. All assessments hereafter imposed shall be made by the board of assessors on the certificate of the head of the department or officer charged with the execution of said work, of the total amount of all the expenses which shall have been paid or incurred, in pursuance of law, by the mayor, aldermen, and commonalty of said city for or on account of the same, and on the certificate of the comptroller, as herein required. And it shall be the duty of the board of assessors to assess, in the manner now authorized by law, upon the property benefited, such expenses and interest as shall be so certified, or such proportion thereof as is authorized by law, and no action or proceeding shall be competent to restrain, hinder or delay, the said board in the performance of this duty. The assessments for taxation made upon wharves, piers, and bulk-heads, in the city of New York, prior to May first, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, are hereby confirmed, and such assessments shall be continued in the annual valuations of property subject to the annual revision of the commissioners of taxes and assessments of said city.

“§ 15. All assessments for street improvements executed under contracts shall be confirmed only by the affirmative action of the board of revision and correction of assessments thereon, and whenever there shall be any allegation of fraud or of the non-fulfillment of any obligation in any contract, the said board may, in its discretion, upon satisfactory evidence thereof, require the contractor to perform all the obligations of his contract before making the confirmation of the assessment for the work or improvement under such contract. No petition or proceeding to vacate, set aside, or affect any assessment which has been heretofore confirmed can be commenced after the expiration of three months after the passage of this act. The whole cost of any work for which assessments are authorized to be laid, shall hereafter be assessed upon the property benefited by the improvement; provided, however, that no assessment against any lot, piece, or parcel of property benefited by such improvement shall exceed one-half of the value of such lot, piece or parcel of property as valued by the proper officers in the department of taxes and assessments, including the value of buildings thereon. Property exempted by law from taxation may, by the proper officers of the department of taxes and assessments in said city, be valued for the purposes of assessment, which valuation shall be subject to annual revision by such officers, and no assessment for local improvement heretofore made on any property in said city shall be vacated or set aside for a failure to include the value of such property in the annual record of the assessed valuation of real and personal estates within the city and county of New York, and all such assessments so made, and not heretofore vacated or set aside by the order of the court, are hereby confirmed.

“§ 16. Whenever the board for the revision and correction of assessments shall consider it advisable in reference to any objection as to the want of power to make an assessment for any particular work, or when required to do so by the order of a judge of the Supreme Court, sitting at Chambers, on cause shown within ten days after the list shall have been transmitted to the said board, by any person making objections as to want of power as aforesaid, said board shall prepare an adjusted case which shall contain a concise statement of the facts and of the questions raised on the objection made, which adjusted case, signed by the members of said board, shall be submitted to the Supreme Court, general term, first judicial department, and shall have a preference before such court, and the decision of such general term upon the case submitted, after argument thereon, shall be final and conclusive on the question raised, and shall not be subject to appeal or review. The action of said board for revision and correction of assessments shall be in conformity with the decision so given, and the court may, by mandamus, compel such conformity.

“§ 17. After considering the objections to an assessment, if any be made, and the decision of said court when required on a case submitted, the said board shall determine the question raised, as to said assessment, and may correct the assessment in such manner as the board may determine to be just and proper. When an assessment is confirmed by said board, and the same is, when an adjusted case has been submitted as aforesaid, in conformity to the decision thereon, such assessment shall not thereafter be open to any objection, and no action or proceeding at law or in equity shall be competent to vacate or set aside said assessment, or remove the lien on the property assessed, or restrain the collection of the assessments or enforcement of the lien.

“§ 18. Whenever the commissioners of the sinking fund shall authorize the investment or payment of any moneys from the sinking funds for the redemption of the city debt, and the payment of interest on the city debt, the amounts required for such purposes shall be paid on the authority of said commissioners by warrant signed by the comptroller and countersigned by the mayor.

“§ 19. No head of department, chief of bureau, officer, clerk, or regular employe in any department of said city shall, after the thirty-first day of December, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, be paid his salary, or any part or portion thereof, from the proceeds of bonds or stocks of said city. And after said date no payment shall be made from the proceeds of said bonds or stocks for the rent of offices or supplies for offices of any department, or of any officer or officers of said city. The board of estimate and apportionment shall provide for all necessary expenses for the purposes aforesaid, in the annual estimate, in the same manner as other expenses of the city government are now provided for. Nothing in this section contained shall be held to apply to revenue bonds, or the proceeds thereof, authorized to be issued in anticipation of the taxes of said city.

“§ 20. No demand, claim, or indebtedness of any character or description for any purpose whatever, arising after the passage of this act, and not payable from moneys raised by bond or assessment as hereinbefore provided, shall hereafter form, or be a charge or obligation of, upon or against the said city, if, at the time such alleged claim or indebtedness was incurred, there was not an amount of the annual appropriation made therefor remaining unexpended, and in excess of all liabilities theretofore incurred, and payable therefrom, sufficient to pay the same. Hereafter no judgment shall be enforced against said city upon any demand, claim, or indebtedness arising after the passage of this act, unless ordered by a judge of the court in which such action is pending after at least two days' notice to the counsel to the corporation, and upon the affirmative proof that there is in the treasury appropriated for the purpose, and in excess of the liabilities theretofore incurred, and payable therefrom, a sum sufficient to pay such judgment, or that such claim is authorized to be paid from the proceeds of the stocks or bonds of the said city (other than judgment bonds so called), and that there remains appropriated, but unissued, an amount of such bonds or stocks authorized by law to be issued sufficient to provide for and pay the same. As to any claim incurred after this act, no judgment shall be entered against said city, except upon affirmative proof of the existence of a sufficient unexpended and unincumbered appropriation as hereinbefore provided, or else, except with reference to the law department, upon affirmative proof that a statement designating the proper appropriation, and the amount thereof applicable to such liability has been given and indorsed in the manner herein provided. It is hereby made the duty of every head of department in said city, except the law department, to transmit to the comptroller daily statements of the aggregate amount of liabilities payable from taxation incurred by this department upon the day of the date of such statement, and a designation of the particular appropriation against which such liabilities are to be charged. Thereupon the comptroller shall cause such liabilities to be entered in the books of the department of finance, so that the unexpended and unincumbered amount of each appropriation can be ascertained upon each day from an examination of such books. Whenever any such liability is incurred, except with reference to the law department, it shall be the duty of the officer incurring the same to deliver to the person with whom the transaction is had a statement designating the appropriation from which such liability is to be met, and informing him of his right to have the certificate of the comptroller of the amount applicable to the discharge of such liability indorsed on such statement. And when such statement is presented to the comptroller, it shall be his duty, within twenty-four hours thereafter, to indorse thereon the amount of the unexpended and unincumbered appropriation applicable to the discharge of such liability. For the purpose of providing for the payment of judgments which may be obtained against said city during the year eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, the comptroller, when authorized by the board of estimate and apportionment, may issue revenue bonds of the city not exceeding a total amount of five hundred thousand dollars, and in the annual estimate of eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, there shall be included an amount sufficient to pay for the revenue bonds issued as in this section provided, and interest thereon. Of the amount so raised the comptroller may apply such part thereof as he, in his discretion, may determine it shall in the interests of the city be proper to apply to pay the fair, just and reasonable value as such value shall after due investigation be ascertained by the comptroller of work actually executed for, or supplies actually furnished to the city and of which the city accepted and received the benefit prior to January first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, other than for advertising, or for printing, or for stationery prior to January first, eighteen hundred and seventy-two. In case an action has been, or may be brought, on any claim for such work or supplies, and now in litigation in the courts or has been adjudicated there upon the merits, such payment shall not be made unless first approved by the counsel to the corporation. A release and discharge must be executed and filed in the department of finance for each payment so made and the full particulars of such payment when made shall be published by the comptroller in the City Record. The comptroller shall pay the audited accounts for gas tax of the town of West Farms (annexed to the city of New York), out of any unexpended balances in his hands; and the assessments for said gas tax now in the finance department — bureau of arrears — are hereby legalized and confirmed, and shall be collected by the finance department, together with interest; the moneys so collected shall be paid into the treasury for the redemption of the city debt.

“§ 21. No action shall be maintained against said mayor, aldermen and commonalty, unless the claim or account on which the action is brought has been presented in detail, in writing, to the comptroller, nor until after the expiration of thirty days from the date of such presentation; every such alleged claim or account so presented for settlement, must set forth, with reasonable particularity, the grounds and items of claims, and the comptroller may, by subpoena signed by him, require any person presenting for settlement any such claim or account, to appear and be sworn before him touching the same, and when so sworn to answer orally to any facts relative to the justness of such claim or account. In the case of claims for salaries and wages, the transmission to the department of finance of the pay-roll stating the name of the officer or employe, his residence, official designation, term of service, the rate of salary or wages and the amount due, verified by the official signature of the proper officer or officers whose duty it is to transmit such pay-roll, shall be a sufficient presentation of all such claims to the comptroller under the requirements of this section. In case any claimant shall refuse to submit to such examination as hereinbefore provided, or shall refuse or willfully omit to answer any proper question, no action shall be maintained on such claim until such refusal or omission shall have ceased. No audit of any bill, account, claim or demand for which said city is liable, made by the board of supervisors of the county of New York, or by any auditing board or auditing officer prior to the thirtieth day of April, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall be evidence as to the correctness of said bill or account, or as to the liability of said city therefor. It shall be the duty of any person presenting any such claim or demand to the comptroller for settlement, or who has commenced or may hereafter commence an action for the payment of any such claim or demand, to show the validity and justness of the same, and the amount due and payable by the city thereon, independently of such audit, which shall not be evidence against said city in such action. Hereafter any audit of any claim against said city made by the board of aldermen must be approved by the comptroller, and only to the extent so approved shall the comptroller be required to pay the same. Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to revive or render legal any demand or claim which was, prior to the passage of this act, barred by any statute. In any action or special proceeding, any public record, report, book or account, estimate or document made or filed in pursuance of any official duty, by or to any public officer, department or board, may be read in behalf of said city or department, board or officer as presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated, and a copy thereof or extract therefrom purporting or proved to have been made or published by authority of any such officer, department or board, may be read in evidence with the same force and effect as if the said copy was original, subject to the right of the opposing party to rebut, contradict or explain such presumptive proof by putting in evidence the whole of such record, report, book, estimate or document, as so published, or by any other legal proof.

“§ 22. No reference to hear and decide the whole issue shall be ordered in any action or special proceeding wherein the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York is a party, provided, always, that the court may, in its discretion, appoint a referee to take and report to the court the testimony relative to any specific question of fact involved therein, or to take and state an account for the information of the court. But this provision shall not apply to actions or proceedings in which a reference has been heretofore ordered by the court to hear and determine the issue therein. All actions or proceedings to which the said mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York is a party, shall have a preference, and may be moved out of their order on the calendar.

"§ 23. The provisions of section two of chapter three hundred and seventy-nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and sixty, with reference to the recovery of costs in actions or special proceedings against the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York, shall not apply to any action or proceeding in which two hundred dollars or more shall be claimed, but less than fifty dollars shall be recovered.

"§ 24. In all civil actions or special proceedings wherein the said city of New York is a party, or wherein any department in said city, or the board of education in said city is a party, or wherein an officer, servant, or subordinate of such city, or of any such department or board is made a party on account of some official act, duty or default, it shall not be necessary for them, or either of them, to execute, deliver or file, or cause to be executed, delivered or filed, any bond, undertaking or security, unless the court in which such action or special proceeding is commenced or continued, shall otherwise direct; and notwithstanding the lack of such bond, undertaking or security, such city, department, board, officer, servant or subordinate, and each of them, shall be entitled to each and every provisional remedy and stay of proceedings which might properly be granted in such action or special proceeding had such bond, undertaking, or security been duly furnished. And in case any bond, undertaking, or security shall be required by the court in any such action or special proceeding, an undertaking, bond, or security may be executed in his official capacity, or by either the mayor or comptroller of said city, in the name and on behalf of said city, and the same shall be held and accepted in satisfaction of every requirement of law in such case, and shall bind the said city to the performance of the condition of the said bond, undertaking or security, but neither the said mayor or comptroller personally.

"§ 25. All expenditures of all departments, boards, commissions, and officers, except the police department and board, payable from the treasury of the city, shall be paid by and through the department of finance, by warrant drawn on a designated bank of deposit, signed by the comptroller and countersigned by the mayor and chamberlain upon a voucher for the amount named therein, after the account or claim has been duly examined, allowed, and certified by the auditor of accounts of the finance department, and approved by the comptroller, except in case of judgment against the city, when a transcript thereof shall be filed with the comptroller; and no warrant shall be drawn in any case, unless such expenditure shall be authorized by law or ordinance, and on account of an existing appropriation made for the purpose, to be referred to in each voucher, which shall be filed in the finance department. But a warrant may, at the discretion of the comptroller, be drawn for the whole or a part of the amount of any single pay-roll of officers or employes of any department, or of any board or commission, payable out of moneys in the treasury of the mayor, aldermen or commonalty of the city of New York, and any such warrant shall be drawn to the order of a person designated by the comptroller to make such disbursements, who shall give a bond to be approved by the comptroller for the faithful performance of such service. And the whole or any part of the amount of interest on stocks or bonds payable by the city of New York, accruing and falling due on any one day, may be paid by a warrant for such amount drawn to the order of the comptroller and chamberlain, to be paid to the person or persons entitled to receive the same, by a check or checks drawn by the chamberlain and countersigned by the comptroller on the designated bank of deposit.

“§ 26. The quota of the State taxes, payable annually by the city and county of New York, shall be paid by the comptroller to the State Treasurer, without compensation, to the chamberlain, and the amount allowed by law for this service shall be paid into the sinking fund for the redemption of the city debt. The comptroller shall publish in the City Record and in pamphlet form, as he may determine, an annual report showing in detail the various transactions of the finance department, the amount of the city debt, and the operations of the city treasury, and of the sinking funds of the city, for the fiscal year ending on the thirty-first day of December, of each and every year hereafter.

“§ 27. No lease of any premises required for the use of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York, or the rent of which is paid from the treasury of said city, shall hereafter be made or entered into for a sum higher than the fair and reasonable rent of said premises, to be previously approved of by the comptroller, and no lease of any such premises shall hereafter be made or entered into for a period exceeding five years.

“§ 28. Nothing in this act contained or implied is intended, nor shall any part or implication thereof be taken, held or construed to legalize, validate or in any way affect, as against the city of New York, or as against any public officer or fund therein, any alleged claim or contract arising out of occurrences prior to the passage of this act, or to dispense with any legal provision in favor of said city applicable to any such alleged claim or contract, except when waived in behalf of said city by the comptroller acting pursuant to section twenty-two of this act.

“§ 29. All balances of appropriations made for the year eighteen hundred and seventy-six and previous years, for the expenses of the city or county of New York, remaining unexpended at the time of the passage of this act, shall lapse, cease and determine, except such amounts thereof as may be required to pay claims and accounts remaining unsettled and chargeable thereto respectively; and all balances of appropriations made for years subsequent to the year eighteen hundred and seventy-six which shall remain unexpended at the end of six months after the year for which such appropriations were made respectively, except such amounts thereof as in the judgment of the comptroller shall be required for the payment of claims and accounts chargeable thereto, shall lapse, cease and determine.

“§ 30. The estimated revenues of the general fund, including interest on assessments, shall hereafter in each year, before the final estimate is agreed to, be certified by the comptroller to the board of estimate and apportionment, and the said board shall deduct the amounts so certified from said final estimate, and only the amount of such estimate, after making such reduction, shall be certified by the comptroller to the board of aldermen, to be raised by tax. The said board of aldermen shall add to the amount so certified, such sums, not exceeding three per cent thereof, as said comptroller shall certify to be necessary to provide for deficiencies in the actual product of the amount of taxes imposed and levied therefor.

“§ 31. Section five of the act chapter two hundred and thirteen of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-one, passed March twenty-nine, eighteen hundred and seventy-one; section fourteen of chapter three hundred of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-one, passed April five, eighteen hundred and seventy-one; the act, chapter five hundred and eighty-three of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-one (except section seven of said act), passed April nineteen, eighteen hundred and seventy-one; the acts chapter nine, twenty-nine and four hundred and forty-four of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-two, passed, respectively, January thirty, February nine and April thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two; chapter seven hundred and fifty-six of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-three, passed June thirteen, eighteen hundred and seventy-three (except section three of said act); chapter seven hundred and fifty-eight of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-three, passed June thirteen, eighteen hundred and seventy-three (except section three of said act), and all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed, as far as the same are now in force and effect, but such repeal shall not affect any taxes imposed under said statutes, or either of them, or any bonds or stocks of the city or county of New York, issued under or pursuant to the authority of said statutes, or any of them, nor shall such repeal create or revive or legalize any liability or claim against said city or county, or any public officer or fund thereof.

“§ 32. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

“§ 33. This act shall take effect immediately.”

"SECTION 1. Section nine of chapter four hundred and eighty-two of the Laws of eighteen hundred seventy-four, is hereby amended so as to read as follows :

The territory taken from the towns of Irondequoit, Brighton, Gates, and Greece, and included in the boundaries of the city of Rochester by this act, and the personal property of the inhabitants of said territory, shall be exempt from the payment of any part of the present city debt and interest thereon, and also debts embraced in what are known as the deficiency bonds of said city, and interest thereon, and from any debt hereafter contracted on account of the construction and completion of water-works of said city, and from any interest accruing thereon under chapter eighty-seven of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-two, or otherwise, and from the payment of any taxes levied on account of the matters aforesaid, except as hereinafter provided ; and the said territory shall also be exempt from the payment of any part of the municipal expenses of the city of Rochester, and taxes levied therefor, except for the support of the poor and of the schools of said city, for which said territory shall be liable. But whenever a majority in number and amount of the tax-payers upon any street or part of a street in said territory by this act annexed to the city of Rochester shall petition for the extension of water mains, or for lamps for lighting said street, or for police patrol of said street, or to be included in the district in which the fire department of said city shall attend to extinguish fires, or that said street shall share in the highway funds of the city, then, in either case, upon the granting of such petition, the taxable property and residents on said street, or part of a street, shall become jointly liable upon and for the whole expenditures thereafter of the city of Rochester, in said city, for the purpose and object so petitioned for, with the old territory of said city; and in case such petition be for the extension of water mains, said taxable property and residents on such street, or part of a street, shall become and be thereafter jointly liable with the old territory of said city and tax-payers thereof, for such portion of the debts contracted in the construction of water-works as shall then be unpaid and equally subject to taxation on account thereof; and it is hereby further provided, that the towns from which the territory hereby annexed to the city of Rochester is taken shall be released from the support of all paupers who are actually residents upon the territory so taken, and they shall thereupon become a charge upon the city of Rochester. The assessors of said city are hereby required to prepare an assessment roll for each of said wards created by this act, and deliver the same to the supervisors of said wards for the use of the board of supervisors of Monroe county on or before the first day of October, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

"§ 2. All lands in the territory, by chapter 482 of the Laws of 1874 annexed to the city of Rochester used for the purpose of raising for sale seeds, nursery stock and farm products, shall be valued and assessed upon the assessment rolls of said city of Rochester as farming lands so long as the same shall be used therefor.

"§ 3. All acts and parts of acts, so far as they are inconsistent with this act, and apply to the city of Rochester, are hereby repealed or modified so as to conform hereto. But nothing in this act contained shall affect any taxes assessed and levied prior to the passage of this act upon the territory annexed to the city of Rochester by chapter 482 of the Laws of 1874.

"§ 4. This act shall take effect immediately."

The Senate returned the bill entitled "An act to secure better public administration in the city of New York," with a message that they had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on said bill in the words following :

To the Legislature :

Your committee of conference, to which were referred the matters of difference between the two houses upon Senate bill No. 285 (original Assembly bill No. 435), entitled "An act to secure better public administration in the city of New York," beg leave respectfully to report that they have met and duly considered such matters of difference, and have agreed to recommend that the Assembly do concur in all the amendments to the bill as proposed and adopted in the Senate ; and also in the following amendments as proposed and adopted in the conference committee—reference, in all cases, being made to the printed bill as amended :

"§ 7. If the lowest bid or proposal be rejected, or if the accepted bidder shall refuse or neglect for three days, after written notice, to give proper security to the satisfaction of the comptroller, or to execute, with his sureties, the contract, the work shall be readvertised and relet as hereinbefore provided, but the time above specified may be extended by the head of the department having charge of such work for not exceeding seven days ; and whenever any contract is hereafter awarded and executed, and the contractor fails to proceed with the work, or abandons the same, the head of the department or officer having charge of such work shall give notice of such failure or abandonment to the sureties of the contractor ; and it shall be the duty of such sureties, within ten days after such notice, to proceed with the work and continue the same until completed in accordance with the requirements of said contract. In all contracts hereafter executed, in name or in behalf of said mayor, aldermen and commonalty of said city, where, upon notice by the head of the department or officer having charge of such work, the sureties shall fail to proceed with the work, and continue the same until completion, or where, after such notice, the sureties shall willfully violate any of the conditions of the contract, or unnecessarily delay the completion thereof, then, and in either of such events, it shall be the duty of such head of department or officer to readvertise and relet the work as herein provided; and upon the same being completed pursuant to said reletting, the comptroller shall certify to the counsel to the corporation the expense of the work in all cases where such expense exceeds the amount provided in the original contract to be paid therefor; and it shall thereupon be the duty of said counsel to commence and prosecute all actions and proceedings necessary to recover such expense so in excess from the contractor and his sureties, and to pay over the amount to the city treasury; but, nevertheless, if the work be one for which an assessment may be imposed, an assessment shall be imposed in the manner hereinafter prescribed for all expense on account of such work, which may be incurred by said city, the amount of such expense to be determined by the certificate of the head of the department in charge of such work.

“§ 30. The estimated revenues of the general fund, including interest on assessments, shall hereafter in each year, before the final estimate is agreed to, be certified before the comptroller to the board of estimate and apportionment, and the said board shall deduct the amounts so certified from said final estimate, and only the amount of such estimate, after making such reduction, shall be certified by the comptroller to the board of aldermen, to be raised by tax. The said board of aldermen shall add to the amount so certified, such sums, not exceeding three per cent thereof, as said comptroller shall certify to be necessary to provide for deficiencies in the actual product of the amount of taxes imposed and levied therefor.

“§ 31. Section five of the act chapter two hundred and thirteen of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-one, passed March twenty-nine, eighteen hundred and seventy-one; section fourteen of chapter three hundred of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-one, passed April five, eighteen hundred and seventy-one; the act, chapter five hundred and eighty-three of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-one (except section seven of said act), passed April nineteen, eighteen hundred and seventy-one; the acts chapter nine, twenty-nine and four hundred and forty four of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-two, passed, respectively, January thirty, February nine and April thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two; section one hundred and thirteen of chapter three hundred and thirty-five of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-three, passed April thirty, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, chapter seven hundred and fifty-six of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-three, passed June thirteen, eighteen hundred and seventy-three (except section three of said act); chapter seven hundred and fifty-eight of the Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-three, passed June thirteen, eighteen hundred and seventy-three (except section three of said act), and all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed, but such repeal shall not affect any taxes imposed under said statutes, or either of them, or any bonds or stocks of the city or county of New York, issued under or pursuant to the authority of said statutes, or any of them, nor shall such repeal create or revive or legalize any liability or claim against said city or county, or any public officer or fund thereof.”

Section 7, in line 6, strike out the word “seven,” and insert the word “thirty.”

Section 30, in lines 1 and 2, strike out the words “including interests on assessments.”

Section 31, in lines 13, 14 and 15, strike out the words "chapter seven hundred and fifty-six of the Laws of 1873, passed June thirteen, eighteen hundred and seventy-three (except section three of said act.)"

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the Senate, with a message informing that the Assembly have concurred in the passage of the same.

Mr. Terry called from the table the report of the committee on privileges and elections in the words following :

To the Honorable the Assembly :

On the seventeenth day of April, the House adopted the following preamble and resolution :

" Whereas, It having been stated by the member from Jefferson, the Hon. Charles R. Skinner, and substantially indorsed by the member from Franklin, the Hon. John I. Gilbert, that members of this House have received money, or its equivalent, for their votes on the Holahan Excise bill now before the House ; be it, therefore,

" Resolved, That the committee on privileges and elections be required to investigate the charge, and report the facts to the House ; and whether any money has been raised by brewers, or liquor dealers, or associations composed of them, to affect legislation this winter ; and whether the temperance societies of the State have furnished any money to influence legislation at this session."

The committee on privileges and elections respectfully report that, in pursuance of such resolution, they held meetings and took testimony in the Assembly chamber on the twenty-fifth and thirtieth days of April; that the testimony has been printed, and is now on the files of the House; that the following facts have been established by the evidence taken in the investigation, in the judgment of the committee:

Money was offered to one member of the Assembly for his vote in favor of the Holahan Excise bill. The offer was not accepted. It was made after the first vote upon the bill, when it failed to receive sixty-five votes, and before the final passage of the same. The evidence upon this point is on the fifty-third page of the printed proceedings.

An employe of the Senate was authorized to offer another member of the House the sum of $1,000 for his vote in favor of the Holahan Excise bill, and was to have $140 for his services in procuring the vote, and he understood a percentage on the amount paid the member. He did not, however, approach the member on the subject, and the member had no knowledge or information that any attempt was being made to obtain his vote in favor of the bill until after it passed the Assembly, and he voted against it upon each occasion when it was before the House. The evidence upon this point will be found upon the twenty-ninth page of the printed proceedings.

It clearly appears that money was raised by associations of liquor dealers, for the purpose of affecting excise legislation at this session of the Legislature. Mr. Charles Loeser, President of the Wine and Spirit Traders' Society of the city of New York, frankly says, in substance, in his testimony (page 24), that money has been raised by his society for the purpose of procuring legislation favorable to the interests of liquor dealers, and that some of that money has been used in Albany for that purpose during this session of the Legislature.

Robert Mackie, treasurer of the Wine and Spirit Traders' Society, says, in effect, in his testimony (page 40), that money has been raised within the last four months and put in his hands as such treasurer, for the purpose of being used at Albany in paying expenses relative to the excise question, and with the ultimate object of passing an excise bill. But it was also claimed and testified to by both gentlemen, that the money was raised and expended only for legitimate purposes, as for printing, clerk hire, traveling expenses, etc.

As proof that improper means were resorted to, to procure a modification of the present excise law, the committee refer to the testimony of Oliver Cotter, agent for the Kings County Law and Order League (page 57). He testifies that at the time the Daly bill was before the House, a man at the Globe Hotel, in the city of Albany, offered to compensate him well if he would cease his opposition to the bill.

The committee call attention to the fact that while the resolution, under which the investigation has been conducted, states that the statement of the member from Jefferson was substantially indorsed by the member from Franklin, the exact language used by the member from Franklin was that he "was morally certain that corrupt means had been resorted to in the attempt to pass the Holahan bill." This statement, we think, the testimony proves to be true.

No evidence has been given before the committee showing, or tending to show, that the temperance societies of the State, or any one interested in the temperance cause, have furnished, used, or raised any money for the purpose of influencing excise legislation, except evidence which shows that they have used money for printing, clerk hire, traveling expenses, etc., with the object of preventing any change in the present excise law.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair and addressed the House in the words following :

Gentlemen of the Assembly :

The words of sacred song, in their application to the legislative history of this chamber, possess a striking significance. "The days of (its) years," since it was first dedicated to the service of the State, "are three-score years and ten." After a term of existence, exactly measured by the standard of the wisest of men, it has reached now the last day and hour of its legislative record. An occasion which marks not only the dissolution of this body, but the close of an historical association, justifies more than the ordinary passing word. No more will these walls echo the eloquence of the great men of the State. No more will they bear testimony to the advancing spirit of the age. Brief, indeed, its history has been. But what a history ! What a period of triumphs does it span ! What wondrous achievements of man ! What grand developments in science ! What mighty strides in the mechanic arts ! What intellectual, political and social enfranchisements ! Within that limited epoch every form of human labor has been lightened and alleviated. From the exception education has become the rule. The Orient and the Occident, to each other terra incognita, are riveted together, by links of steel, into an unbroken chain of communion. The barren wilderness blossoms like the rose. The inhospitable desert has become a mighty empire. Human genius out-rivals the advance of Time, and makes both sound and speech subservient to its will. The era of a grander, a nobler, a truer civilization dawns upon us. To meet its requirements and to respond to its demands, the legislative bodies of the world have been brought to that perfect system of procedure which obtains to-day. The New York Assembly is universally conceded to be the archetype of all the rest. Here the initiative was taken in the remodeling and harmonizing of the canon as of the civil and common laws. Here woman first received a separate politico-legal recognition. To the distinguished men who have preceded you, the eyes of all the rising commonwealths have, for half a century, been turned, and the organic and statute laws of New York have been the accepted models in the establishment of their own existence and organization. Here the genius of De Witt Clinton shaped, for all time to come, that wise policy of inland navigation, which has made the Erie canal the most potent factor in the problem of cheap transportation. How touching the thought that this very moment witnesses the destruction alike of the forum of his great measures and of the home which he loved so well—both passing away at the same time in this capital city! Within our very view the first steam railroad was built and operated, the forerunner of that magnificent way that binds the rock-ribbed Sierras of Nevada to the eastern and the western ocean. In fine, the history of this chamber is the history of the State; the history of the State is the history of the nation; the history of the nation is the history of the world.

Grand old Capitol! Home of grand old men—of Wright and Seward and Marcy; of Elisha Williams and John C. Spencer and Michael Hoffman! Scene of intellectual contests and of deeds as grand! To thee we pay the final tribute of our deep devotion.

“Time-honored and time-crowned by meeds of fame,
Would that our parting praises might avail,
To add new glories to your age and name.”

Gentlemen, the session has been exceptionally harmonious. The lack of questions of vital political difference will, in a great degree, account for the unity of thought and action which has marked our proceedings. Beyond this view there is, however, another—perhaps a more correct one. The Assembly of 1878 will go upon the record untarnished in its reputation, and with an honored name. Devoid of selfish and unworthy motives, it will live in memory for its social virtues, its geniality and the generosity which has always manifested itself in the intercourse of its members. I trust, as I believe, that I subject myself to no adverse criticism, when I declare my unqualified conviction that this House has sought, according to its best judgment, to do its entire duty. Questions of grave importance have here been the subjects of your careful scrutiny and investigation. The results that have ensued have been reached after a candid and careful comparison of views. Many good laws have been enacted. Some, as is ever the case, have failed. None of evil tendency or import have been engrafted on the statute book. This Assembly has been faithful to its trust. I am confident it has secured, as it has certainly deserved, the good opinion of the people. Neither its ability nor its integrity can be questioned.

In laying down the emblem of authority and power with which your partiality invested me, I sincerely commend each and every one of you to the favor of your constituents. Expressing my deep sense of obligation for many favors conferred, especially for the sentiments embodied in your resolutions, and the kind words spoken to-day, I tender to you my most sincere thanks for the uniform and never-failing courtesy and respect which I have experienced at the hands of one and all. I bear with me into private life the most delightful remembrance of this my last official act in the Legislature of the State, and shall ever treasure up, among the pleasant memories of an active public career, the friendships formed during the days that we have sat together.

I extend to you my earnest hopes, that your future may be joyous and happy, as, with a heart overflowing with gratitude, I bid you now farewell; and, in pursuance of a joint resolution of the Legislature, declare this Assembly adjourned sine die.

EDWARD M. JOHNSON, Clerk.
